Mine Labor Pact Signed By Operators And Unions

Up to Roosevelt For Action Today

Meeting Next January Agreed Upon for Revisions.

(Associated Press.)

The Northern Coal Control Association and the Smokeless-Appalachian group, representing more than 70 per cent of the Nation's soft coal tonnage, last night signed a labor contract with the United Mine Workers of America.

The contract, carrying out the coal code provisions by setting tonnage rates based on the code's basic day rates and fixing agreements on other details, was drawn up in negotiations which followed the signing of the charter by President Roosevelt last Monday.

The operators' representatives signed the contract only insofar as employes of the operators are represented by the United Mine Workers, but the contract is binding on members of the association whose employes elect to have the U. M. W. represent them.

To Roosevelt Today.

The contract, which will run until next March 31, will be submitted to President Roosevelt for approval today. It was turned over to Hugh S. Johnson, Recovery Administrator, last night.

An agreement was made under which representatives of the contracting parties will meet with NRA officials next January 5 "for the purpose of determining revisions that may be desirable at that time covering wages, hours, differentials, or other requirements of the contract and the code of fair competition for the bituminous coal industry, as well as the conditions to be set forth in a new agreement effective April 1, 1934."

Hailed as Historic.

The three signatories of the contract, J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Northern Coal Control Association; E. C. Mahan, president of the Smokeless and Appalachian Coal Association, and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, said in a joint statement:

"Unquestionably, this agreement is the greatest in magnitude and importance that has ever been

Mrs. Chewning Plans Forfeit

Offers No Contest in Car Horn Case at Falls Church.

There will be no court battle staged by Mrs. Margo Couzens Chewning against the "noise-making" charge made by Mayor L. P. Daniel, of Falls Church, Va.

Rather than fight the case, she has been advised by her attorney, John C. Mackall, to forfeit collateral.

No collateral had been posted last night; but arrangements were under way to have it deposited.

"I believe Mrs. Chewning is innocent of the charge," said Mr. Mackall. "However, because of the attendant publicity I have advised her to forfeit collateral."

The daughter of Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, is scheduled to appear in police court tomorrow night to answer the charge.

On Tuesday night the charge was placed when she allegedly blew her automobile horn impatiently when caught in a traffic jam.

Wife Uses Poesy In Asking Divorce

"Noble Viking Lord" Kept Her Prisoner, She Says.

Chicago, Sept. 21 (AP).—Mrs. Maizelle Edwards Eichman, 22, employed poetic prose in her divorce bill today to describe how a high-school romance wilted.

She said she was "kept a virtual prisoner in a lofty tower of the rocky shores of the Atlantic by a noble Viking lord."

2,000-Carat Diamond Discovered in Brazil

Rio de Janiero, Brazil, Sept. 21 (AP).—One of the world's largest diamonds, a stone of 540 grams or more than 2,000 carats, was reported found today in a diamond field in Minas Geraes Province. Its value was placed at $780,000.

A prospector named Bahia Ninhos is credited with the find. It compares with the great Cullinan diamond, found in South Africa in 1907.

RICHARD C. du PONT.

Frederick, Md., Sept. 21 (AP).—Bettering the American soaring record in a flight from Waynesboro, Va., to the local airport, Richard C. du Pont, wealthy Wilmington, Del., glider pilot, tonight said he would return immediately to Virginia to attempt to surpass the international record.

Du Pont, after taking a rest at the hotel here following upon his flight, said he traveled 122½ miles, bettering the American record of 66 miles held by Jack O'Mara, of New York, and just missing the international record by 14 miles.

He said he had no trouble after being launched near Waynesboro. He followed a "bee line" along the summit of the Blue Ridge Mountains until he decided to come down

10,000 See Deciding Tilt; Maul Cronin, Mates After Victory.

Across the greensward at Griffith Stadium yesterday in the overworked but still famous setting of two out in the ninth, galloped Outfielder Heinie Manush to fling one gloved hand high in the air, haul down a winging baseball and haul in the 1933 American League pennant for the Nats.

Big Manush, the strong, silent man of the ball team, clutched that final put out with a death-grip, drew glove and ball to his lips, and kissed it full on the stitches as his poise and reserve gave way under the realization that the Nats, finally and conclusively, were "in."

10,000 See Game.

Out of the stands tumbled 10,000 Ladies Day customers to maul and pummel Manush, Manager Joe Cronin, Pitcher Walter Stewart and any other ball players who were handy in celebration of that 2-1 victory over the St. Louis Browns that climaxed the Nats' pennant chase.

For Joe Cronin it was the fulfillment of boyish dreams conceived on the sandlots of San Francisco, where he launched the baseball career that landed him with the Pirates as a rookie in 1927, with the Nats also as a rookie, in 1928. Today he is the miracle worker in baseball, with a pennant to show for his first managerial effort, undertaken at the age of 26, the youngest of all big league managers.

Series Win Next Goal.

But Cronin's boyish dreams have now taken on added specifications, and today the pennant triumph is merely a successful anticlimax. To lead the Nats to victory over the Giants in the world series is now the goal of the boy manager who welded a third-place team of 1932 into the pennant winner of 1933.

That catch of Manush's was a classic, in a classical setting. The Nats were one putout shy of the pennant in that ninth. They were holding a one-run lead, when Oscar Melillo, of the Browns, smacked

Dr. Besant Cremated While Mourners Chant

Madras, India, Sept. 21 (AP).—The body of Dr. Annie Besant, world theosophical leader, was cremated today on a pyre of sandalwood near the mouth of the Adyar River, while a large gathering chanted verses from the Bhagavad Gita, an ancient philosophical poem.

The pyre was lighted by Bishop C. W. Leadbeater, who was named by Dr. Besant a year ago to succeed her as the head of her school.

Marconi Starts Voyage to U. S.

Genoa, Italy, Sept. 21 (AP).—Guglielmo Marconi, accompanied by his wife, embarked today on the liner Conte di Savoia "with keen anticipation of my forthcoming visit to the United States, which I consider my second country because I can not forget that it was the first great nation to help me in my work."

Cuban Troops Battle Rebels; Revolt Grows

Enemies of New Regime Reported Ready to Launch Attack.

U. S. Warships' Arrival in Harbor of Havana Draws Crowds.

Havana, Sept. 21 (AP).—Government troops clashed with rebel forces of Juan Blas Hernandez at Las Cuevas ranch near Moron and two rebels were killed, according to reports reaching here tonight.

A government guide, Jose Alonso Diaz, was reported critically wounded. Government troops were supported by students with guns, the report said.

Word of the first actual armed clash between rebels and forces supporting the Grau government supplemented persistent rumors here that forces were ready to strike at the new government and that a new revolution was brewing.

Rebel's Son Emissary.

Pablo Hernandez, son of the rebel leader, who persistently harassed President Machado when he was in office, meanwhile was at the palace, conferring with President Grau San Martin and government officials.

Young Hernandez arrived at the palace while 5,000 government supporters were engaging in a demonstration in front of the building, shouting vivas for Grau. It was understood he was acting as an emissary.

At the height of the demonstration several youths started fighting and one of them was stabbed. He was removed to a hospital.

Grau spoke to the demonstrators from the balcony and told them the people of Cuba have a "free and independent country."

U. S. Ship Stirs Interest.

Throngs rushed to the waterfront as the United States ammunition ship Nitro, bringing supplies to the cruiser Richmond, passed Morro Castle into the harbor. Storms delayed her arrival two days.

A serious labor situation at Manati sugar mill, on the north coast of Oriente Province, was reported to the Cuban Trading Co., operating it. Two thousand strikers were said to have taken over the mill, demanding an eight-hour day and minimum wages of $1 daily.

Approximately 50 Americans are employed at the mill, the company said, but only a part are now there supervising repairs. The report did not indicate whether any of the Americans were in danger.

Riots Speed Cuban Crisis

U. S. Officials Alarmed at Reports of New Outbreaks.

(Associated Press.)

The Washington Government was on the alert last night after hearing reports of fresh outbreaks in the interior of Cuba, but orders were passed to all warship commanders in Island waters to act only after consultation with officials here.

Dispatches reaching the Capital reported an early crisis might be expected in the political and labor troubles that have embroiled both Havana and the island interior.

Secretary Hull said consular advices received early yesterday indicated a lull, but late dispatches carried word of renewed violence.

A. A. Berle, jr., one of the Roosevelt advisers who has returned from an inspecion trip in Cuba, reported to officials today it was imperative that conditions in Cuba be settled quickly.

Berle, who was sent to Havana with John Laylin, of the Treasury Department, to inspect financial and other conditions, conferred for hours this morning with Secretary Hull and Jefferson Caffery, Assistant Secretary of State.

President, 'Feeling Great,' Back at Desk

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt shook off his cold yesterday and returned to work at his desk. He said he was "feeling great."

Smiling at reports about his indisposition, Mr. Roosevelt put in one of his busiest days in the study of the Executive Mansion.

Late in the day he received newspapermen and announced his plan for purchase of surplus foods and staples to be distributed to the needy.

Boy, Unconscious Since Sept. 6, May Recover

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 21 (AP). Poyal Hinnant, 8, regained consciousness today for the first time since September 6, when he fell three floors to the street from the People's National Bank Building.

Hope is entertained for his recovery.

Wolf Slain by Ram Protecting Sheep From Fang Attack

Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, Sept. 21 (AP).—Ed Mayer, Noelville farmer, came to town today with a story that a ram he owned had killed a wolf.

Mayer said he ran toward a group of sheep in which a disturbance was apparent and arrived in time to see a large ram charge a wolf that had sunk its fangs into a sheep's neck.

The wolf, he said, died of a fractured skull and a broken neck.

Shift of NRA To Permanent Basis Begins

(Copyright, 1933, by The Associated Press.)

The huge job of shifting the Recovery Administration from an emergency to a permanent organization has been begun by Administrator Hugh S. Johnson.

Looking forward to the time when he hopes to have all industry operating under codes of fair competition, Johnson is endeavoring to work out a plan for self-regulation of industry with the least Governmental interference consonant with protection of the public.

Thomas S. Hammond, executive director of the emergency reemployment campaign, was reported tonight drafting permanent set-up of the NRA at request of Johnson.

Up to Advisory Board.

It was emphasized the present outline under which industry would be given a thorough chance to run its own affairs had not been approved by the Cabinet Advisory Board headed by Secretary Roper. However, the board has discussed a similar set-up with the administrator.

The permanent organization will guide NRA's course until the act expires on June 16, 1935. Johnson, however, believes that before that time Congress will act to extend beyond that date the best features of the recovery program.

Besides the staff reorganization there also is under way an examination of existing codes for revision of weak spots and merger wherever possible.

Meanwhile, a general reorganization of NRA key men and creation of a policy board was disclosed with appointment by Johnson of Robert W. Lea, deputy administrator, as assistant administrator for industry. He succeeds Dudley Cates, Chicago insurance man, who resigned.

Policy Board Members.

The new Policy Board, headed by Hammond, includes:

Lea, Alvin Brown, administrative assistant to Johnson; Edward F. McGrady, assistant administrator for Labor; Charles Michelson, chief public relations; Malcolm Muir, deputy administrator; Donald R. Richberg, general counsel; Mrs. Charles C. Rumsey, chairman Consumer's Advisory Board; Dr. Alexander Sachs, chief economist; K. M. Simpson, deputy administrator; Nelson Slater, liaison officer between NRA and Agricultural Adjustment Administration; Walter C. Teagle, chairman Industrial Advisory Board; Dr. Leo Wolman, chairman Labor Advisory Board; C. C. Williams, deputy administrator, and Robert K. Straus, liaison officer between divisions of the administration.

W. L. Allen, another deputy administrator, was named to the board but resigned yesterday to return to his work as consulting engineer in New York.

The permanent administrator, who will succeed Johnson when the emergency work is completed, will be the mainspring of the new order.

Latin-American Trade Talks Begin

The first of the negotiations between this country and the principal Latin-American nations seeking improved trade relations will open today at the State Department.

A conference this afternoon between economic experts of Colombia and Jefferson Caffery, Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Latin-American affairs, will mark formal launching of President Roosevelt's efforts to open broader markets in South America.

Thomas Lays Wall St. Move To Deflation

'Famine in Currency and Credit' in Business, Senator Charges.

President Is Expected to Hold Off on Inflation as Advisers Split.

As President Roosevelt was receiving conflicting views on inflation from political leaders as he proceeded with his credit expansion program, Senator Thomas yesterday issued a statement that "failure to inflate the currency has caused removal of the New York Stock Exchange from New York City to New Jersey."

"Deflation," the Oklahoma Democrat, a leading inflation advocate, said, "has caused a famine in currency and credit, and because of inability of property owners and business men of New York City to pay their taxes, the city officials have found it necessary to increase taxes on every active business.

"The stock exchange was about the only institution showing signs of prosperity, hence the city tax on transactions coming through it.

Already Bore Heavy Burden.

"The taxes imposed by the Federal Government and the State of New York were already a heavy burden upon the exchange, and when the City of New York added an additional tax, the exchange found it necessary to move.

"I attribute the forced removal of the exchange directly to opposition of Wall street to inflation and failure of the Federal Reserve System to increase the amount of money in circulation."

Before Thomas issued his statement, Senator Lewis, Illinois, assistant Democratic leader, informed President Roosevelt that from his observations on a recent trip through the South and West, he was convinced the people, as a whole, were against inflation.

Earlier a delegation from the cotton belt headed by Senator Bankhead, of Alabama, presented a plea for a price-lifting cotton purchase plan and expressed favor for currency expansion.

The delegation expressed belief Mr. Roosevelt was looking sympathetically on their plan to have the Government purchase half of this year's cotton crop from producers at 15 cents a pound.

Expected to Hold Off.

Some of those familiar with the President's views expressed belief that he intended to hold off on his power to issue new currency and give, first, thorough opportunity for Federal-backed bankers to put into circulation the money and credit they have.

The President's callers included experts on the monetary situation, particularly the international phase—James M. Cox, of Ohio, chairman of the monetary committee at the recent London Economic Conference, and James Warburg, of New York, financial adviser to the London economic delegation. Each declined to talk.

Military Funeral Accorded Pinedo

Fascist Officials Attend Services in Rome.

Rome, Sept. 21 (AP).—A full military funeral was accorded today to Gen. Francesco de Pinedo, Italian flier, killed in New York at the start of an attempt to establish a new long-distance record.

Following church services, the body was entombed at a cemetery in the presence of government and Fascist party officials.

Pilot, 2 Passengers Die In Alaska Plane Crash

Anchorage, Alaska, Sept. 21 (AP). Crashing from a height of about 200 feet, over the airport at Livengood, a small mining camp, G. E. (Ed) Young, Alaskan flier and two passengers were killed in Alaska's first commercial passenger air tragedy.

The other victims were Eric Nelson and Aldwyn D. Roberts.

"Gentlemen of the Press" gathered in the Mayflower Hotel last night to meet reporters.

The first reporter who showed up—a little bit late, as is the wont of reporters—was "given the gate."

This reporter, Bob Buck, was interviewed by another reporter. He said:

"Soon as I got there I was told to 'Get Out.'"

All sorts of fancy Gentlemen of the Press were assembled—columnists, led by Heywood Broun; writers of fiction; commentators, and advice-to-the-love-lorn artists.

They met to discuss the code having to do with newspaper workers.

The question arose: "Are reporters professional people or craftsmen?"

"Craftsmen," said Mr. Broun. "They do not take examinations, like doctors and lawyers."

In a discussion over wages and hours, it developed that not one Gentleman of the Press knew anything about the Code.

According to the code, reporters and common run-of-the-mine employes are the only members of the Fourth Estate affected by the NRA.

An overflow meeting after the Gentlemen of the Press had ejected the reporter, was called to call a meeting of reporters. Five questions to be asked at that meeting are: "Who?, What?, Where?, When, and Why?

Gentlemen of the Press will be invited to answer.

Seaplane Crash Hurts 12.

Roosevelt to Spend $75,000,000 Federal Funds to Feed Needy

Former President Hoover Signs Up

Carefree after six months of private life, former President Herbert Hoover, visiting the Century of Progress, was cheered by officials and visitors. The name that was signed to many an official document went on the books of the California exhibit. Miss Mildred Clemens, in charge, asked for the former Chief Executive's signature, and got it.

Government to Purchase Food and Cotton for Clothing.

Step Aimed at Glutted Markets in Addition to Aid for Jobless.

(Associated Press.)

Purchase of surplus foodstuffs and staples for distribution to the Nation's needy was ordered last night by President Roosevelt in a direct attack upon the economic paradox of want in a land of plenty.

A rough estimate placed the total cost of the undertaking at about $75,000,000.

The Government plans to buy on the open market and the products under consideration include beef, dairy and poultry, cotton and cotton seed. The cotton purchased will be manufactured into clothing.

The President directed Agricultural Adjustment and Federal relief administrators to speed this program with the two-fold purpose of stabilizing glutted markets and feeding the unemployed.

Roosevelt Tells Plan.

It was emphasized by Mr. Roosevelt in personal announcement of his plan that this relief was to be in addition to that already being extended by Federal, State and local authorities and was to be given particularly in those areas where he considers the food and clothing for the needy utterly inadequate.

The foodstuffs and clothing will be in addition to the 100,000,000 pounds of cured pork the Government is giving to the unemployed from hogs purchased under a plan already in operation.

The relief move fits into the general Roosevelt attack upon surpluses that have been smothering prices. The President also expressed determination that the 3,500,000 on relief rolls shall be cared for.

The President announced the relief program late yesterday. He read a prepared announcement later given out by his secretary, Stephen T. Early, and then discussed it with newspapermen.

Hits Economic Paradox.

Mr. Roosevelt said he considered the program one of the most direct blows at the economic paradox that had left farms burdened with an abundance of food products while unemployed had gone hungry.

Already, in the effort to reduce the surpluses, the administration

U. S. Presses Fight to End Kidnap Racket

At Oklahoma City, where a dozen suspects are on trial for the abduction of Charles F. Urschel, oil millionaire, additional therats were reported received from "Machine Gun" Kelly, the fugitive leader of the Bailey-Bates kidnaping ring.

At Edwardsville, Ill., the prosecution speeded up its drive to send six accused abductors of August Luer, Alton banker, to the electric chair.

Swift prosecution was promised by New York officials for five men and two women suspects in the O'Connell kidnaping. Five murders and numerous bank robberies also are charged to this group.

Oklahoma City, Sept. 21 (AP).—A purported death threat by George Kelly, fugitive kidnaper, against defendants who "talked" and Government witnesses caused a sensation here today.

Kelly, who has defied capture, in a letter, authenticated with finger prints, threatened to murder the Urschel family. He was reported to have appeared last night at a farm near Stratford, Okla., and made his latest defiant gesture.

Fred Coleman, son of the elderly T. M. Coleman, owner of the farm which was a hangout for the Urschel kidnapers, told Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught that Kelly had threatened to kill members of the Coleman family and also R. G. Shannon, his wife and son, Armon Shannon, defendants in the trial.

Attorney General Cummings in Washington declared it was only a matter of time until Kelly would be captured. District Attorney Herbert K. Hyde, whose family has been threatened, expressed belief yesterday that Kelly was in Oklahoma City.

Through a purported statement from Mrs. Shannon the prosecution directly linked Harvey Bailey, notorious cutlaw and alleged brains of the kidnaping plot, with the actual imprisonment of Urschel. Mrs. Shannon was quoted as saying Bailey was at the Texas farm while the oil man was held.

Mexican Isle Silenced After Report of Gale

Mexico City, Sept. 21 (AP).—The National Observatory said tonight that communications with the island of Cozumel, off the coast of Quintana Roo, were interrupted just following upon reports that a tropical storm was approaching Yucatan from the northeast.

The disturbance was expected to be near Merida in the morning.

Former Woman College Dean Feared Drowned

Lake Placid, N. Y., Sept. 21 (AP).—Missing since early this afternoon, Mrs. Mabel Smith Douglas, former dean of the New Jersey College for Women, was believed by State police tonight to have been drowned in Lake Placid.

Davis Moves to Exclude 1930 Lottery Evidence

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—Federal Judge Johnson Hayes, of North Carolina, reserved decision today after hearing arguments to exclude all 1930 lottery evidence from the second trial of Senator James J. Davis.

The trial adjourned over the Jewish holidays until Monday.

League Guards Hitler Envoys

Peace of Europe Believed to Hinge on Geneva Arms Parley.

Geneva, Sept. 21 (AP).—Political tension existing in Europe was emphasized today as Swiss detectives from many cities began mobilizing to reinforce Geneva police for the opening tomorrow of the League of Nations assembly and council meetings and the disarmament conference.

The purpose was said to be primarily to protect lives of German delegates.

Opening of sessions will begin a period of intense activity in the league. That the peace of Europe is the stake of negotiations was the view tonight.

On one side are France and allied nations apparently ready to limit but not to reduce armaments, at least prior to termination of the period of rigid control of existing armaments which France has proposed.

On the other side is what is called an awakened, fiercely nationalized, Hitlerized Germany, seemingly determined to insist on eventual equality of armaments and emancipation from military restrictions of the Treaty of Versailles.

Miami, Fla., Sept. 21 (AP).—An international elopment by airplane was recorded late today when a young couple arrived here from Port au Prince, Haiti, and then proceeded to Fort Lauderdale, where the wedding ceremony was performed.

The bride was Miss Eulalie Joiner, of Charleston, S. C., daughter of a United States Navy officer stationed in the Haitian capital.

Plane From Liner Fails to Arrive

Catapulted From Bremen, Craft Long Overdue.

Southampton, England, Sept. 21 (AP).—Anxiety was occasioned here tonight by the nonarrival of a seaplane catapulted from the liner Bremen shortly before noon, 550 miles west of here.

The seaplane, carrying mail, was due at 7 p. m., but was unsighted at 11 p. m.

Fifteen minutes after arrival time here, a wireless report was received stating the plane was south of the Isle of Wight running out of gasoline. Nothing was heard since.

Bank Bandits Kill Policeman

Rob Federal Reserve Messengers of Funds in Chicago Loop.

Chicago, Sept. 22 (AP).—Five desperadoes held up and robbed two Federal Reserve Bank messengers of three or four bags of currency early today and a few minutes later shot and killed a policeman while making their escape.

The robbery occurred on the north side of Jackson boulevard, in the Loop district, between Clark and La Salle streets, and authorities were unable to estimate the loss.

The victims told police the men were masked and carried machine guns. They drove up beside the messengers in an automobile. They abandoned their car and loaded the money into a second automobile.

Eastern Lines Agree To Basic Fare Slash

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—The Herald Tribune says presidents of the Eastern railroads agreed today to reduce the basic passenger fare to 2 cents a mile for round trip and 3 cents a mile for one-way tickets, together with elimination of surcharges.

The rates, applicable in all Eastern territory except New England, were said to be subject to modification at a general meeting of representatives of all railroads, but they will go into effect in November, it is reported.

Japan Would Enlarge Army.

Tokyo, Sept. 21 (AP).—Military authorities are seeking reestablishment of four army divisions eliminated in 1925. This would make a total of 21 divisions in the Japanese army.

Business Split On Price Plan In Retail Code

(Associated Press.)

Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson yesterday began preliminary study of retail and drug codes to the accompaniment of protests and indorsements from business.

Harry Van Horn, president of the National Association of Better Business Bureaus, urged approval of the code as submitted.

E. M. Schnadig, president of the Mail Order Association of America, said provision that merchants must sell at 10 per cent above the highest wholesale price paid by any store in each marketing area means the price level would be controlled by corner stores buying in smallest quantities.

Namm Explains Aims.

B. H. Namm, of the Namm store of Brooklyn, N. Y., chairman of the committee on unfair practices representing six national retail associations, including dry goods, mail order, shoe, clothiers and furnishers, hardware and furniture said:

"The fair-practice provisions we ask to have approved will go far toward curbing these primary evils after specifying predatory price cutting by competitors and general and continuous underselling claims by competitors as among the primary evils.

"There are in addition many secondary evils still to be curbed. The stop-loss paragraph (limiting the sale of goods to invoice cost plus 10 per cent, partly to cover labor costs) is certainly not price fixing, as has been claimed. As Judge Rosenman has stated, this paragraph is merely intended to stop 'commercial suicide' in much the same manner as we now limit the use of deadly weapons in social life. The paragraph barring general underselling claims is not oppressive.

General Benefit Foreseen.

"There is nothing in these fair-practice provisions that will destroy fair competition among retailers. There is nothing in these provisions that will not benefit labor, which suffers greatly from destructive price wars. There is nothing in these provisions that will not benefit the consumer because there never has been and never will be any ultimate gain to anyone from buying merchandise at a low price when that price involves a loss to the distributor, manufacturer and workers involved.

"The retailers of the country are ready and eager to go forward under the new deal. They understand and approve the spirit and purpose of the N. R. A. They are glad to have the Government as a silent partner. They welcome the consumer point of view. As soon as their code is signed, they will employ more people, buy more goods, and start paying income taxes again."

Youngstown, Ohio, Sept. 21 (AP).—Private funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon for James A. Campbell, chairman emeritus of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., who died suddenly last night at his home here.

The body of the man who built Sheet & Tube from a small struggling firm to the third largest steel mill in the country, will lie in state Friday evening and Saturday morning.

that he resign, delivered earlier this week.

Col. Fulgencio Batista, chief of staff of the army, said Juan Blas Hernandez, rebel leader in Camaguey Province, was ready to surrender. Other sources said the veteran revolutionary was stronger than ever.

Rafael Viera, chief of police at Moron, arrested with 20 of his men after Blas left that city for the field, was brought to the Capital this morning and jailed in Cabana Fortress. He said Blas had nearly 2,000 followers.

Report Two Men Killed.

No violence was reported here outside of scattered shooting, but 2 men were killed, 2 wounded, and 51 arrested at the nearby town of Marianao, where a mob attacked the house of Jose Emilio Obregon, son-in-law of Machado. The mob was repulsed by rural guards.

Newspaper proprietors, called to the palace by President Grau, promised to continue publication until Saturday. No morning newspapers appeared due to a strike over wage scales.

Batista announced the 500 army officers, ousted by the uprising which raised him from the rank of a sergeant, would be allowed food supplies if they need them. The officers still were barricaded in the National Hotel.

Collection Begun in 1847 by Postmaster of Culpeper, Va.

Regarded by philetalists as one of the greatest stamp finds in a generation, a collection, the identity of the owner of which has not yet been revealed, has been brought out of the vaults of the National Savings & Trust Co.

Charles Kohen, 716 Seventeenth street northwest, acting as agent for the undisclosed owner, estimated the value of the collection would run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Begun in 1847 by a postmaster of Culpeper County, the collection was gradually expanded by the collector until his death in the last quarter of the last century. A grandson of the Virginia postmaster acquired the collection in 1886 and added to it intermittently. But, since 1904, the date of the last stamps added, the collection had lain undisturbed and forgotten.

These two pages of stamps catalogue at near $50,000.

The 1857 series is represented in entirety, with three of the famous 90-cent Washingtons, valued at $1,000 each, and another, unknown variety, an imperforate black on white paper. There are 18 perforated and unused, representing all types complete, valued at from $30 to $300 each. The 1857-60 series is complete in all types, with the 3-cent Washington in blocks of four, used and unused. The 24-cent steel gray is a perfect specimen.

Other Rare Stamps Seen.

Then there is the 1861 series, from the Franklin, indigo blue ($3,000) to the 90-cent, including the 12-cent, valued at $7,000. All types, shades, and sizes of the perforated 1857-60, 1861, singles and in blocks, are here, and the valuation of this series is about $25,000. One page of '61's, containing 29 rare and unknown shades, perforated, including a pair of the famouse pink 3-cent, represents an inestimable value.

There is a page of proofs of August, 1861, on gold-beater's skin, and there is a complete set of 1867 specimen stamps. The 1867's are complete from 1 cent to 90 cents, with the rare 30-cent yellow, perforate, with entire grill, valued at $2,500.

There are the three almost unique inverted 15-cent, 24-cent and 30-cent of 1869, unused, valued at $15,250 for the three. The 1869 series, picturesque, likewise, is complete in regular form. The 1870-71, used, unused, without grill, is perfect and complete in all shades, and in blocks of two, three, and four.

The departmental stamps are complete—with Agriculture, Interior, Justice, Executive, Postoffice, State, Navy (including the rare green 2-cent error), and all the others. The postage dues are complete, from the first issue to 1904; all the newspaper and periodical stamps, including the scarce 5-cent blue, are there in all issues, unused. The rare dispatch stamps and official seals of Postoffice; documentary, private issues of mail stamps of the beginnings of our postal system; the provisional issues.

Perfect Confederate Issues.

There are the most perfect Confederate stamps, in blocks of nine, including the rare "Ten," in all shades, used and unused.

This one volume alone, with its every issue apparently complete in every shade, variety and type, perforate and imperforate, where both exist, used and unused, would have a catalogue value of well over $100,000, Mr. Kohen said.

The second volume, containing hundreds of rare covers, many entirely unknown, would add another $25,000 to the value of this almost unique collection of philatelic rarities. Blood's Penny Post, 1858's, Boyd's City Express, Hussey's S. M. Post of N. Y.—these are represented with several covers bearing these firms' postmarks. All the rarest issues of stamps from 1847 are here on perfect covers. The 1860 12-cent black, cut crosswise to pass for 6 cents, valued at $1,000, is here, as are the 24-cent and 90-cent of '69—in fact, all the '69 issue is complete on covers. Items of human interest, also; a letter from a Civil War prisoner at Elmira, N. Y., to his wife, with the oval censor's stamp—"Prisoner's Letter Examined"—across its front.

Accurate estimate of the number of individual items in this vast collection has not been made, nor its probable value. Only two of the volumes in the entire lot have been seen by the agent, but he is enthusiastic in declaring it to be one of the greatest stamp finds of a generation.

Farley Agrees To Ride Graf With Eckener

Commander Leaves City to Complete Plans for Chicago Trip.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, ruddy, grizzled commander of the Graf Zeppelin, left Washington by train at midnight for Akron, Ohio, to complete arrangements for using the naval mooring mast there in his projected flight to the World's Fair at Chicago next month.

Arrangements have been made to use the mooring masts at Miami, Fla., and at Chicago. En route to Chicago Dr. Eckner will carry as a passenger Postmaster General Farley, who yesterday gave his tentative promise to make the trip.

Dr. Eckener's journey will be over the regular route from Friedrichshafen to Berlin, from Berlin to Seville, in Andalusian Spain; from Seville to Pernambuco, Brail. Then he will return by way of Miami and Akron to Chicago. From Chicago the Graf will take the southern route back to Seville.

Farley said he contemplated a trip to Texas from October 17 to 23 and this would prevent making the entire American trip with Dr. Eckener.

When Dr. Eckener was asked what old friends he had visited, he replied: "I laid a wreath on the grave of Admiral Moffett. On it I wrote, 'To my dear old friend, Admiral William Moffett, a great fighter for our cause."

Dr. Eckener plans to arrive at Miami October 23, leave for Akron next, day, and go on to Chicago between October 25 and 28.

All NRA Moves Called Legal

R. Walton Moore Declares Constitution Is Not Being Violated.

Denying the Constitution is being disregarded in the national recovery program, R. Walton Moore, new Assistant Secretary of State, yesterday told the Alexandria Kiwanis Club that "all the powers the President exercises are conferred by Congress, and the action of Congress has not had any judicial criticism or condemnation."

Much has been done for which no precedent can be found, but that does not mean the Constitution is violated, he said, adding:

"Those who framed the Constitution knew the outline they provided would necessarily have to be filled in to take care of the varying needs of the future which it was impossible for them to foresee. This is exactly what is happening now."

Virginians, and particularly Alexandrians, should feel a deeper interest in the Constitution, said Mr. Moore, than other people, for it was a Virginian and an Alexandrian, George Washington, who determined to link the colonies together.

Salesmen Submit Code to Require Buyers to Be Punctual.

(Associated Press.)

Traveling salesmen, believing they have been losing a lot of time unnecessarily, want the NRA to approve a code for them requiring purchasing agents to keep their appointments right on the dot.

The proposed code for salesmen in all industries was presented yesterday to the NRA by J. G. Daly and E. W. Dillon, representing the United Commercial Travelers.

Newspapers To Push Code Contest Today

NRA Ends Hearings on 21 Charters of Other Branches of Field.

(Associated Press.)

Preparing for a spirited set-to today between employers and organized labor, so far unable to agree on a code for daily newspapers, the NRA yesterday pushed to a conclusion its hearings on 21 recovery charters submitted for other branches of publishing and printing industries.

As public study of the periodical publishers' code neared an end, Elisha Hanson, general counsel for the American Newspaper Publishers Association, expressed the opinion that all newspapers should be under that organization's agreement.

He said "newspapers don't have to come in under any code."

Hanson declared the 1,200 newspapers represented by the A. N. P. A. could do no better than offer workmen an average 40-hour week over a six months period with a maximum of 44 hours.

He gave no indication of a change in the provision exempting reporters from the maximum hours. Groups of newspaper writers planned to ask shorter hours.

Organized labor promised an even stiffer disagreement.

Air Pilot Crashes Twice in Two Days

Unhurt First Time, Gets Broken Leg in Second.

Thomas B. Hoy, Eastern Air Transport pilot, yesterday crashed for the second time in two days.

Hoy, unhurt Wednesday, yesterday suffered a broken leg when the plane on which he was co-pilot with Glen MacDonald, Elizabeth, N. J., cracked up at Newark. MacDonald suffered serious head and shoulder injuries. None of the 14 passengers, bound for Washington, was hurt.

The day previous Hoy planted a trimotored plane in a melon patch, in Maryland, on the Washington-New York run. Flying alone, he put out a fire, repaired the motors and continued to Washington.

Soft-Coal Mines Contract Unions

negotiated in the history of collective bargaining in the United States. Its sponsors believe it marks the beginning of a new era in the task of stabilizing and modernizing the economic processes of this basic industry.

"The consummation of this agreement has been made possible through the functioning of the machinery of the National Recovery Administration and by reason of the earnestness and unselfish diligence of all the representatives of the coal industry, who for months past, almost without ceasing, have worked for the attainment of this objective.

Basic Rates in Effect.

"The agreement was negotiated under the direction of the President in conformity with section 7 (b) of the recovery act, and its sponsors, in submitting it for approval, commend it not only to the President but to the people of the United States."

The rates for pick mining are from 56 to 70 cents per ton; for machine loading from 33 to 52 cents per ton; for short-wall machine cutting from 5.6 to 8 cents per ton.

The management of the mine, the contract stipulates, "the direction of the working force and the right to hire and discharge are vested exclusively in the operator, and the United Mine Workers of America shall not abridge these rights."

Arbitration Plan.

The contract provides election of a committee of three workers at each mine to adjust disputes between mine workers and management. Should mine committees fail to settle a dispute it is to be presented to a board of four, two designated by workers and two by operators. Should this board fail it will then be placed in the hands of an umpire designated by the board, or, in case the board is unable to agree on an umpire, by the recovery administrator. The decision of the umpire in any event shall be final.

Fight Launched On High School Tuition Plans

Parents-Teachers Board Fears Trend Menaces Education in U. S.

Deploring purported efforts to "put high-school education on a tuition basis," the board of managers of the Congress of Parents and Teachers, concluding its sessions here, last night adopted a resolution urging members to help provide "free and full educational opportunity."

Mrs. Hugh Bradford, Sacramento, Calif., president, and Miss Charl O. Williams, of Washington, asserted that State superintendents already faced possibility of tuition charges for all high-school pupils. Both advocated Federal relief.

Mrs. Williams presented plans for a study of educational financing methods by members of the congress throughout the country. She said she saw widespread need for such knowledge of the subject.

The congress will meet next year, from May 13 to May 19, in Des Moines, Iowa.

has been negotiating for sale of wheat and cotton abroad.

The President made it clear that he desires departments concerned expedite in every possible way their combined attack on the food surplus and hunger problems.

Secretary Wallace and Harry Hopkins, Federal relief administrator, are in Chicago and early moves by them are in prospect.

Text of Statement.

The text of the White House statement follows:

"The President today announced a program to help correct one of the most flagrant maladjustments of American economic well-being. Through his action much of the oversupply of important foodstuffs and staples will be placed in the hands of destitute unemployed who are living on the short shrift of public unemployment relief.

"Following conferences with Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, George N. Peek, agricultural adjustment administrator, and Harry L. Hopkins, Federal emergency relief administrator, the President announced the Agricultural Adjustment Administration is preparing to make further purchases of surpluses for distribution by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration to the unemployed in the various States.

Supplements Pork.

"The announcement followed the recent allocation by Mr. Hopkins of 100,000,000 pounds of cured pork, which had been processed recently from millions of hogs purchased from surpluses by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. The meat will go to the various State relief administrations for distribution to the unemployed on their relief rolls.

"Additional products under consideration for similar handling include, among others, beef, dairy and poultry products, and products of cotton and cottonseed.

"There are approximately 3,500,000 families on relief rolls throughout the country. It is known that even with recent improvements in relief administration resulting in higher standards of relief, the amounts of food and clothing given the destitute are still inadequate.

Markets Glutted.

"On the other hand, in large part, because these millions of potential consumers are not able to purchase a normal amount of commodities, huge surpluses of basic food products are glutting the markets and making their production unprofitable to farmers.

"By using funds of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, supplemented by those of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, and the Nation-wide network of State and local relief administrations for distribution, a real effort to bridge the gap between supplies and consumption will be made. In this way two major objectives of the recovery program will be promoted—feeding and clothing the unemployed more adequately and hastening the agricultural recovery.

"It was emphasized that the commodities given the unemployed will be in addition to amounts they are now receiving, wherever they are now inadequate, for the purpose of giving them reasonable standards of sustenance. They will add to and not replace items of relief already provided.

Safeguards Planned.

"In removing the surpluses from the market, carefully applied safeguards will forestall any disturbance of the regular channels of production, processing and distribution.

"The President said he considered the program arranged between the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and the Federal Emergency Relief Administration one of the most direct blows at the economic paradox which had choked farms with an abundance of farm produce while many of the unemployed have gone hungry. He has directed the departments concerned to expedite in every possible way their combined attack on the food-surplus and hunger problems.

"While this joint effort is being made to increase domestic consumption of surplus farm products, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration will intensify its program of preventing accumulation of farm surpluses so great they can not be consumed, but result only in ruinous prices to farmers, destroying purchasing power and aggravating rural and urban distress."

Byrd Stamp Approved.

Iowa Farmers Rap Wallace

Resignation Is Demanded; Secretary Made "Goat," Says Defender.

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 21 (AP).—Resolution demanding resignation of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace was passed today by the Farmers Union of Iowa.

A short time later Senator Louis J. Murphy told the convention Wallace "is being made the 'goat' for things for which he is in no wise responsible."

The things Murphy indicated Wallace is not responsible for include rising prices of commodities the farmer buys without proportionate increase in the value of those he sells.

The convention voted in favor of inflation, with which Wallace has declared himself sympathetic.

Naval Aid Detailed Here by Germany

Hitler Fills Post for First Time Since War.

Germany's first naval attache to serve at Washington since the World War, Capt. Witthoeft, was appointed yesterday by the Hitler government, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

Last April the German embassy received its first military attache since the war, Maj. Gen. Friedrich von Boetticher.

Officials at the embassy explained there had been no necessity for military and naval attaches previously, as Germany had such a small army and navy. They could assign no reason why the vacancies should now be filled, though they said the same procedure is being followed at other German embassies.

Kansas Governor's Girl Under Heavy Guard After Threat.

Topeka, Kans., Sept. 21 (AP).—The family of Alf M. Landon, Governor of Kansas, remained under heavy guard today after Landon revealed that his 16-year-old daughter, Peggy Anne, had been marked for kidnaping in a plot to liberate members of the notorious Bailey-Underhill gang from the State penitentiary at Lansing.

Peggy Anne was nonchalant in the midst of precautions, such as placing a guard armed with riot guns about the governor's mansion.

"Oh, boy! Wouldn't that be a lot of fun," she said, when her father told her of the impending danger.

She Looks for Abductors.

Upon her return home when asked where she had been, she said: "Just riding around, looking for kidnapers, but no one paid any attention to me."

Since then she had been tarried by armed guards.

None of the plotters was named. Landon said 11 men, 6 of them long-term convicts, and a woman were in the group.

Underhill Suspected.

Harvey Bailey, leader with Wilbur Underhill in the escape of 11 convicts from the Kansas prison Memorial Day, is on trial at Oklahoma City for the $200,000 ransom kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel.

Underhill, still a fugitive, and three other escaped life termers at large are believed to have participated in the abortive plot.

Will Dated 1863 Filed to Settle Land Title.

To clear title to a piece of real estate here, a will written in Civil War times was filed in District Supreme Court yesterday. Its provisions have long since been carried out.

The will, signed by Benjamin Waters, of Alexandria, in 1863 was in the files of the Alexandria Circuit Court. A son, Thomas, was given several parcels of real estate, "also my colored man, Solomon." A daughter, Mary A. E. Zimmerman, was given "all the servants with the exception of Solomon."

Ferry Rivals Argue Plans

Views on Chesapeake Bay Service Clash Before Works Board.

Fate of the proposed new ferry service across Chesapeake Bay rests with the Public Works Administration, from which $425,000 must be obtained to help finance the project.

Final arguments on the application were heard yesterday by the administration's technical board of review. This was another step in the three-year battle between the Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry Co. and the proposed new company.

Contending the proposed service was unnecessary, Philip Perlman, Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry Co. attorney, said it would force his company to discontinue operation. He charged the ferry would merely supplement the Chesapeake Beach Railroad, which is now in debt in excess of $5,000,000. He asserted that if a proposed bridge is built across the bay it may render all ferry service unnecessary.

Thomas P. Littlepage, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, supporting the new ferry, said the service would give advantage by reducing the distance between Washington and the Eastern Shore by 40 miles. Interests of the applicant company were upheld by its attorney, Jonathan Gibson.

The new company asks a $425,000 loan to supplement $312,000 of private capital. Plans for the service have been approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the District Supreme Court, and the United States Supreme Court.

Tammany Hall Decides To Stand by O'Brien

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—In the face of intraparty strife and the threat of tacit indorsement by President Roosevelt of an independent mayorality candidate, Tammany Hall decided tonight to stand by Mayor John P. O'Brien as the Democratic party's nominee.

Conferences in Washington between the President and Postmaster General James A. Farley and Edward J. Flynn, Bronx leader, caused reports Joseph McKee or Grover A. Whalen might win approval of Mr. Roosevelt as an independent.

Embryo Radio Crooner Held In 2 Murders

Suspect in Jersey City Admits Guilt in Both Cases, Police Say.

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 21 (U.P.).—Louis Kenneth Neu, 26, who hopes to become a radio crooner, tonight was being investigated as the confessed murderer of two men—one in New Orleans and one in Paterson, N. J.

Neu was arraigned today as a fugitive, while New Orleans and Paterson authorities sought his custody.

Neu admitted, according to Jersey City police, that he killed Lawrence N. Shead, manager of a Paterson motion picture house, with an electric iron.

The prisoner also confessed, police officials said, that he took Shead's automobile, drove to North Carolina, abandoned it, and proceeded to New Orleans by train and bus.

On September 17, he told police, he killed Sheffield Clark, a business man, in the Jung Hotel, in New Orleans. Jersey City police said apparently, robbery was the motive in both killings.

Paterson police were notified today the car belonging to Shead had been found in Charlotte, N. C., where Neu admitted he left it.

It was understood Neu would be turned over to Paterson authorities, who have warrants charging him with murder and larceny.

Bank Held Up, 12 Abducted

Victims Taken on Wild Ride by Ransom Bandits, Then Released.

Hays, Kans., Sept. 21 (AP).—Four machine gunners held up the Farmers State Bank here, abducted 12 persons for a wild flight southward in stolen motor cars and escaped across the Oklahoma line after freeing the last of their hostages near Holyrood, Kans., tonight.

While search by posses and an airplane was pushed, the robbers, who obtained only the cash outside the vault, changed swiftly from car to car, alternately adding to and subtracting from the list of the abducted.

A request for National Guards to join the pursuers was made to Gov. Alf M. Landon by A. J. Wiles, Ellis County attorney, who said the governor promised aid.

Eight hostages, including Miss Hilaria Schmidt, 22, bookkeeper, were marched out of the bank to the bandit car, being shot at by Prof. James Rouse, of Fort Hayes State College, from across the street.

The official distances announced were: Poland, 846 miles; U. S. Navy, 776; Goodyear IX, 492; Germany, 251; Belgium, 229, and France, 155.

Delay in announcing official results of the race that began September 2 in Chicago was due to landing of the Polish and Goodyear balloons in dense Canadian forests.

Court Battle In Nudist Camp Case Promised

Allegan, Mich, Sept. 21 (AP).—Threatening to "fight to the last ditch" the charges that followed their arrest in a raid on a nudist camp they conducted near here two weeks ago, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ring, Kalamazoo dancing instructors, today were bound over to Circuit Court on charges of indecent exposure.

The case, the first in Michigan, will be called in October.

At the preliminary hearing Edward J. Murray, Chicagoan, said he and his wife spent some time in the camp, taking sun baths. He said he saw no evidence of "lewdness, indecency or obscene actions."

Murray, who is 56, said he was "just testing nudism out."

Mrs. Mary Angier, whose summer home adjoins the camp, told of seeing "lots of naked people" reclining on the grass or playing volley ball.

Moore Quits Two Posts in Virginia

Duties Clash With State Department Job.

(United Press.)

R. Walton Moore, of Fairfax, newly appointed Assistant Secretary of State, said yesterday he had resigned from the Virginia State Board of Education and the State Liquor Control Commission.

The Virginia law, he said, automatically retired him from the board of education when he accepted the Federal post.

Moore said he had advised Gov. Pollard he would be forced to step out of the liquor board, regardless of whether the law operated in the same manner in respect to this commission.

Veterans Lose Over 2 Billion In DividendCut

Bureau Slashes Rate 53 Per Cent, to Atone for Lower Earnings.

(Associated Press.)

To build up reserves and offset lowered earnings, the Veterans Administration has reduced dividends on its insurance policies 53 per cent, affecting 613,000 holders of $2,768,000,000 in such obligations.

For payments going out in the current calendar year, a total appropriation of $3,650,000 has been allotted as compared with $7,270,066 paid out last year, when the estimated average was $12.87 a policy.

"The dividends paid on Government life insurance were less than the previous year because it was deemed necessary to place an increased amount to the credit of the reserve provided for losses, and also, but to a much lesser extent, due to the earnings of the insurance fund being at a somewhat lower rate," the administration explained in a statement.

It will determine after the close of business on December 31 what the next dividend rate will be.

Ickes to Seek Test in Court Of NRA Power

U. S. Investigator Ready to Prosecute Alleged Oil Code Violators.

(Associated Press.)

The first court test of NRA's power to enforce codes was in contemplation last night by Secretary Ickes.

Louis Glavis, an Interior Department investigator, is in New York ready to prosecute persons he is convinced have cut prices or are handling oil produced in violation of State allocations.

Meanwhile, the Secretary approved appointment of more than 600 to regional committees on oil production, marketing, transportation and refining. These will help guide the industry in its effort to stabilize itself.

Yet to be announced are several hundred more appointees for various State committees. Executives said the committees were as widely representative as possible. They will collect statistics, settle disputes, correlate price data, suggest production ratios, and attempt to execute the code without calling on Secretary Ickes.

"I am instructing Mr. Glavis to proceed," he said, but would not say when prosecutions would start.

The Secretary said dealers who bought gasoline at cheap rates should be capable of making the "shrewd guess" that it was made from illegally procured oil, and that he was thus selling "bootleg" merchandise.

Ickes said intentions were to develop the strongest possible cases.

Postal Puff

U. S. Treasurer Declares Farley Merits Medal for Ending Debt.

(Associated Press.)

The Treasurer of the United States is ready to pin a medal on Postmaster General Farley for getting the Postoffice Department out of the "red."

Farley made public yesterday this letter which he received from W. A. Julian, the Treasurer.

"In looking over a Treasury statement of August 31, I note for the first time in many, many years that the Postoffice is in the clear, and for this year, since the first of July, there is less than a $3,000 deficit.

"You certainly are to be congratulated and should have the Croix de Guerre bestowed upon you for your excellent management."

Buyers Delay Tobacco Pact, Draw New One

Hearing on Marketing Agreement Develops Fight on Terms.

(Associated Press.)

Public hearing on the proposed marketing agreement for flue-cured tobacco yesterday turned into closed meetings of buyers after it developed they objected to terms of the pact and were drafting counter-proposals.

Farm Administration officials sat in the meetings of domestic and export buyers. Domestic buyers outlined a tentative proposal taken under consideration by administration officials.

It would bind the larger domestic buyers to pay prices close to parity for the remainder of the marketing year up to June 30, but the buying would be based on consumption of flue-cured by the manufacturers over the last few years.

The proposition sounded good to farm officials but they said they would do a little research before they accepted it, especially to find out how much tobacco would be bought.

Growers complained larger domestic buyers had paid parity prices for the better grades of tobacco in the past but that the real problem was the lower grades and the tobacco exported.

The proposed agreement on which the hearing was held, or rather scheduled, would have bound both the larger domestic and export purchasers to pay prices set by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Factory Wage Up $12,000,000 In One Month

Authentic Figures Reveal Codes Working, Says Miss Perkins.

(United Press.)

Increase of $12,000,000 in pay rolls of manufacturers under the NRA codes and agreements during July 15-August 15 was reported yesterday by Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Figures of statisticians formed the basis for the report, the "first real indication," said Secretary Perkins, "we have had," Miss Perkins said.

"This also is the first authentic information," said Secretary Perkins, "that the NRA codes and the President's agreement are going over."

Henry I. Harriman, head of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, said recently this clause barred the "closed" or all-union shop. Robert L. Lund, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, charged Wednesday that the American Federation of Labor was the "greatest obstacle" to success of the recovery program.

"The battle hymns of such gentlemen," he said, "have little place in the picture today. They sound too much like the alarm drums of special privilege."

35 Mine Union Locals Protest NRA Wage Scale

Pittsburgh, Kans., Sept. 21 (AP). Thirty-five local unions in District No. 14, United Mine Workers of America, have sent protests to Washington against the $3.75 daily wage scale contained in the coal code.

The protests, union officials estimated, represent between 4,000 and 5,000 workers.

Shopping News Hit For Code Demands

(Associated Press.)

Claims of shopping news publishers for their own code were presented yesterday to the NRA and immediately were attacked by the American Newspaper Publishers' Association.

Sam P. Anson, of Cleveland, representing the American Shopping News Publishers' Association, testified such publications were distinct from newspapers, hence should be treated differently.

Elisha Hanson, general counsel of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, insisted the words "advertising-newspapers" should be eliminated from the shopping news code because "their approval by the NRA of itself would be an act of unfair competition against newspapers."

Fort Monroe Storm Barrier Costs Million

Works Board Authorizes Job; $14,800,000 to Coast Guard.

A grant of $1,000,000 for construction of a sea wall 13 feet high and almost 2 miles long at Fort Monroe, Va., was made yesterday by the Public Works Administration, which also allotted $14,800,000 to the Coast Guard.

The sea wall will be built by the War Department as a defense against storms such as the recent hurricane, which destroyed many military installations and buildings. The project will give work to 800 men for more than six months, it is estimated. An earth parapet and a cut-off wall to prevent flanking floods also will be built.

The Coast Guard allotment will be used chiefly for new revenue cutters, patrol boats, seaplanes and air stations. Provision is made for 6 300-foot cutters, 2 165-foot cutters, 9 patrol boats and 31 seaplanes.

Pressure of Coast Guard forces is causing smugglers to take to the air, and the seaplanes will be needed to follow them. The Coast Guard informed the Works Administration that it expected no decline in smuggling after repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and would, therefore, need new patrol vessels.

Uncle Sam Is Challenged.

Threats of death are reported to have been sent to United States Attorney Herbert K. Hyde and others who are involved in the prosecution of twelve men accused of kidnaping Charles F. Urschel. Letters bearing the signature of George Kelly and fingerprints believed to be those of the alleged bandit and kidnaper openly threaten retaliation. Seldom has the authority of the United States to enforce its laws been so impudently challenged.

Authorities of the Department of Justice are well aware of the fact that they are dealing with desperate characters in their fight to break up the kidnaping racket. The prosecutors in this case as well as the principal witnesses are under heavy guard. "Gangland is desperate," says Mr. Hyde; "we can expect anything."

The Union Station massacre at Kansas City last June indicated the temper of these gunmen of the Middle West. They live in open defiance of all governmental authority. Large sums of money extorted from kidnap victims enable them to assemble forces that become a serious menace to law enforcement. The life of any one who defies them is in jeopardy. It is this situation with which the Government must cope in its war against kidnaping.

An active campaign against gunmen has brought the struggle between the Government and gangdom to a showdown in Oklahoma City. Apparently the vigilance of the Department of Justice has made these bandits more daring, vindictive and reckless. Agents of the United States are threatened with violence if they dare to prosecute alleged criminals.

The manner in which the Government meets this challenge may have an important bearing upon its entire anti-crime campaign. The ability of the United States to track down criminals who flout the law ought to be emphatically demonstrated. Its power to afford protection to prosecutors and witnesses in the face of gangdom's open challenges ought to be manifested.

The underworld as well as law-abiding citizens will watch the Oklahoma City case as a key to law enforcement in the immediate future.

Legion Plans.

The annual convention of the American Legion to be held in Chicago during the first week of October is expected to be the largest gathering in the history of the organization, with 150,000 veterans in the parade. A significant change in the attitude of the Legion toward legislation is forecast from the action already taken by State departments and the program for the convention.

It appears that efforts to secure cash payment of the bonus will be sidetracked and emphasis placed on endeavors to restore some of the reductions in veteran benefits under the economy program. The platform of Legion demands prepared by Ed Hayes, of Decatur, Ill., has been so favorably received that it is predicted he will be elected national commander.

One provision of the revised program calls for restoration of the 25 per cent reduction in compensation payments. It demands that lowering of compensation shall be made only on proof of improvement of a veteran's condition; that a service-incurred disability rating shall be removed only upon proof of fraud; that any war veteran unable to pay shall be entitled to free Government hospitalization, and that payments to widows and orphans of dependents shall not be lowered.

Leaders who are prominent in making arrangements for the convention admit that the bonus question may be brought up on the floor but are confident that any attempt to force that issue at this time will be confined to a minority. On the other hand, they claim that the demands to be presented covering compensation and hospitalization already have been ratified by members in half the States. The Americanism commissions of the Legion that have been working in various States will present resolutions urging suppression of Communism.

The Corporation Tax.

An unusual feature of the capital stock tax provided for under the National Industrial Recovery Act is found in the fact that each corporation is required to place upon its stock a valuation which is not subject to change and which determines the amount of tax to be paid. Upon this declared valuation the corporation must pay a tax of $1 for each $1,000. The law is so framed, however, that a company which undervalues its stock may incur a more severe levy by having to pay a greater excess-profits tax.

A company which declares its capital stock at $50,000, for example, would pay a tax of $50 on that amount. If, however, its profits at the end of the year should amount to $12,500 it would have to pay a 5 per cent tax on the profits in excess of 12½ per cent. In this case half the profits, or $6,250, would be subject to the 5 per cent excess-profits tax, which would amount to $312.50. This, added to the capital tax of $50, makes a total of $362.50. But if the corporation had valued its capital stock in the first place at $100,000 it would have been called upon to pay a tax of only $100 under the provisions in the Recovery Act.

The present assessments may remain in force for a considerable period owing to revenue requirements. The President is authorized to terminate the capital stock and excess profit taxes after formal announcement that Government receipts exceed expenditures, or after repeal of the eighteenth amendment, which will assure the Treasury large returns from liquor taxes.

Cautious Moves in Europe.

Preliminary conversations between the spokesmen of governments interested in disarmament indicate that the attitude of the respective governments is about as follows:

The United States seems to be willing to agree to a plan for supervision of national armaments, provided a substantial move toward reduction can be agreed upon. It is not interested in any move to investigate alleged secret accumulations of war material by Germany.

Great Britain is anxious to co-operate with France and the United States in some practicable disarmament plan, but will not join France in imposing sanctions upon Germany for alleged infractions of treaty obligations. British Conservatives are urging naval building.

Italy has opposed commission control of armaments, but may be disposed to accept international supervision, provided appreciable disarmament can be achieved in the meantime.

Germany will object to any arms supervision unless the other powers first reduce armaments.

France is pursuing the double purpose of preventing Germany from re-arming and of maintaining French armaments, subject to supervision of an international commission which would be empowered to enforce the limitations agreed upon by the disarmament conference.

The mere outline of the aims of the various governments discloses the great improbability of any agreement next month or in the immediate future. France and Germany hold irreconcilable views. The German government holds a strong card in the shape of the pledge of the former allied powers to endeavor to reduce armaments—a pledge that was made at a time when it was deemed wise to justify the denial of armaments to Germany.

However, if France possesses actual proof that Germany has secretly accumulated war material or organized its forces in violation of the Versailles Treaty, it may be expected not only that the disarmament conference will be sterile, but that France will ask all parties to the treaty to co-operate in applying sanctions to Germany. It is believed in France that refusal by the other powers to apply sanctions would warrant the French government in acting alone, under the terms of the treaty.

Whether or not the Hitler government has made secret war preparations, it is evident that warlike utterances by German leaders and Nazi offensives against Austria have disturbed Europe profoundly and caused several governments to confer with a view to adoption of a common policy to counteract possible aggressive German policies. They are proceeding with great caution, however, seemingly because they apprehend that France's insistence upon the application of sanctions to Germany might precipitate a clash instead of merely curbing Nazi preparations.

Unrest in the Saar.

In the midst of Europe's many tangled issues a dramatic fight for possession of the Saar Territory is going forward. An area a little more than half the size of Rhode Island with a population of 790,000 is at stake. The question of its disposition is arousing once more many of the animosities that arose from the World War and have never been fully dissipated.

The Treaty of Versailles gave France absolute possession of the Saar coal mines as compensation for the destruction of her northern mines by the German army. To enable France to exploit these properties the Saar territory was separated from Germany and placed under the jurisdiction of an international commission responsible to the League of Nations. This arrangement was not permanent, however. Sixteen months hence residents of this disturbed territory will determine its future status through a plebiscite.

Three alternatives are permitted under the treaty. The Saar territory may return to Germany, it may be annexed to France, or it may continue under its international governing body. Reports from Saarbrucken, the chief city, indicate, however, that there is little possibility of a vote favoring French sovereignty.

The people are largely German. Most of them have looked forward to the plebiscite as an opportunity to rejoin the fatherland. But the rise of the Hitler regime has made many of them skeptical. A spirited fight is in progress between those who wish to return to German sovereignty, in spite of present conditions, and those who favored continuation of international control. French influence, of course, is thrown upon the side of the present regime.

If the Saar votes to become German again France may lose the rich coal mines of this area. Germany would then have the privilege of repurchasing the mines at a price to be fixed by a body of experts. Being anxious to retain the mines, French interests are putting up a stiff fight against the Nazi campaign for reannexation.

The international commission and the French interests are under attack by the Nazi organization in the Saar. On the other hand, some German leaders are urging a vote to continue under international guidance until "Germany becomes a democratic country again." It is a confused issue, involving the passions of 1918 as well as the frenzy of the present day. The league may have a difficult time conducting a fair and impartial vote, and the growing intensity of the campaigns can not be expected to contribute to Franco-German amity.

Securities Issues.

The value of American investments in new securities during the ten-year period ending with December, 1932, reached a total of $70,835,000,000. This figure, an average of $7,083,500,000 annually, is the investment aggregate quoted by David F. Jordan, professor of finance at New York University, in the new addition of his book, "Investments," just published.

The year of greatest security buying was, of course, 1929, when the total reached $11,592,000,000. The least active was last year, when new issues amounted to only $1,721,000,000. Prof. Jordan finds that in June of last year the banks of the country, in addition to trust funds, held investment securities for their own account in excess of $18,000,000,000.

The effect of the depression upon commercial operations, this writer holds, is indicated by the decline of commercial bank loans from $41,376,000,000 to $28,074,000,000 during the three years following June 30, 1929, while in the same period investment security holdings increased by nearly $1,000,000,000. Of the investments held in June of last year only 3.2 per cent are reported as foreign securities.

Prof. Jordan's advice to holders of real estate securities and municipal bonds is to exercise patience rather than to attempt to compel payment at an inopportune time. Proper protective measures and reasonable refunding plans, he says, may facilitate recovery of a substantial part of apparent loss confronting many investors. It is interesting to note the professor's conservative suggestion that "it is not generally recognized that an average return of 5 per cent upon invested capital over an extended period of years requires investment skill of a high order."

Dumping Is Penalized.

Four antidumping orders have been issued by the Treasury Department to protect American manufacturers against the importation of foreign goods for sale here "at less than a fair value." In each case an antidumping duty will be assessed against these commodities to put them on a competitive basis with similar American products.

The articles against which these orders are directed are incandescent light bulbs and rubber-soled fabric-topped footwear from Japan, celluloid-covered thumb tacks from Germany and saponified stearic acid from the Netherlands. The Treasury found that American manufacturers of these products were being or were likely to be injured by unfair competition.

Japan's shipments of fabric and rubber shoes and light bulbs has been widely investigated and discussed. The Tariff Commission found that the importation of miniature bulbs, chiefly from Japan, increased from 3,416,253 in 1929 to 80,741,252 in 1932. During that time the price of these imported bulbs declined from .25 to .07 cent. Imports of the larger-sized light bulbs from Japan increased during this period from 949,612 to 33,135,048.

The facts regarding fabric and rubber shoe imports are similar. After Japan went off the gold standard large quantities of this footwear were shipped to this country at prices that domestic industries could not meet. Manufacturers applied to the Tariff Commission for relief under the flexible provision of the law, but the price differentials were so great that a 50 per cent adjustment in the duty was not considered sufficient to offset Japan's advantages. Appeal was then made to the Treasury for application of the antidumping provisions of the tariff law.

A number of other complaints of dumping by foreign producers are pending before the Treasury Department. No doubt they will be dealt with according to their merits. Issuance of the four current orders indicates that the administration is ready to act when there is sufficient evidence of unfair foreign competition. It is a well-known fact that some domestic enterprises have been injured by the importation of goods at extremely low prices made possible by depreciated currencies, subsidies or other special advantages in the hands of their competitors.

While the Treasury is following up this policy, however, it may be somewhat embarrassing for the Department of Agriculture to proceed with its program of dumping surplus American wheat on the world market at prices below the domestic level.

A Brazilian prospector has found a 2,000-carat diamond worth $780,000, but it will not be all net gain. A prospector always owes $25 or $30 for upkeep of self and burro.

Possibly the eagerness with which the French are buying those lottery tickets is due to a misapprehension that the proceeds are to be used to pay the debt to America.

British speculators are reported to be completely discouraged over their inability to analyze the workings of the NRA. Why don't they organize a brain trust?

It takes a lot of foreign pounding to keep the dollar down in the sixties when Uncle Sam has enough gold to take up all currency at par and have a billion left.

History prepares to repeat and the Capital is assured that the great diamond mystery of 1933 will be solved in October.

THE FINGER-PRICK TEST.

(Dr. T. C. Friedmann, of the University of Chicago, has found a way to determine intoxication by the finger-prick test."—News Item.)

"What was that?" demanded Mrs. Elmer Twitchell, startled by a crash of glass in the hall.

"It's father," said Junior, after a brief investigation. "He walked through the glass without opening the door."

"'Lo, everybody!" chirped Elmer a moment later as he crawled into the living room on his hands and knees. "Are ya lissenin'?"

"Well!" demanded Mrs. Twitchell, "where have you been?"

"Who?" demanded Elmer.

"Where's your necktie?" thundered Mrs. Twitchell.

"Who wants t' know?" asked Elmer, rising unsteadily and crashing to the floor again.

Mrs. Twitchell is no woman to leap to conclusions.

"Get the needle!" she said simply to Junior. "It is possible your father has been drinking."

* * * *

"Whoosh!" said Elmer, picking himself up, but missing his aim as he tried to sit down in a chair, and falling into an open fireplace.

"Let me have your finger," commanded Mrs. Twitchell as Junior returned with the needle.

"What finger?"

"Any finger."

"I've been robbed!" moaned Elmer.

"Robbed of what?"

"My fingers! They're all gone," sobbed Elmer, looking around in alarm and not conscious of the fact he was sitting on his own hands. "Musta just happened. I had 'em when I came in."

"Gimme that hand!" snapped Mrs. Twitchell, yanking it from under Elmer and jabbing it with a needle.

"What's the trouble?" asked a neighbor, rushing to Elmer's assistance in the flower bed.

"They pulled a knife on me!" said Elmer.

"Who?" asked the Good Samaritan.

"That's my business," replied Elmer. "Say, how'd the Giants make out today?"

The neighbor looked through the open window in considerable confusion as he sensed Mrs. Twitchell's form there.

"I thought so," said the wife, showing a smear on a glass slide, "he's been drinking!"

Oakland Tribune.

There have been many estimates of the cost society pays to crime. A recent one, made by Maj. E. W. Brown, chief of police of Washington, does not go into the grand totals, but has it that during "good" years the revenues collected by one gang, that of Al Capone, was $150,000,000 or "2,000 times the annual salary of the President of the United States."

You Can't Judge a Plowhand by His Table Manners.

By Robert Quillen.

IT is a mark of sound intelligence to judge all things by standards appropriate to the time and place.

There was a long period during which most of America west of the seaboard resembled a construction camp. It was uncouth, vulgar, noisy and unclean.

Europeans who visited the country and traveled inland during that period returned home to ridicule and scorn and condemn all they had seen.

And thus they unwittingly confessed their own want of insight and understanding. For they had in truth visited a construction camp and their provincial little minds were horrified because it failed to resemble a London drawing room.

When the Prince of Wales visited America in the time of Victoria, he appeared in a Western city during a State fair and ate lunch from a table of rough pine boards on the fair grounds.

The prince doubtless enjoyed "roughing it" for a change, but English correspondents, describing the event for their home papers, made no effort to conceal their contempt for barbarians who would offer a royal gentleman tongue sandwiches and sauerkraut.

In his autobiography, Theodore Roosevelt had occasion to describe his preparations for bed while living in the cow country. Though reared in the ways of gentlefolk, he conformed to the custom of the time and place, removed his shoes and pants and slept in his shirt and underclothes. It wasn't a good example for small boys in these sanitary times, but it was appropriate to the environment and therefore above reproach.

To judge fairly and sensibly, you must judge a thing by its background, its natural limitations and the circumstances that made it as it is.

It would be ridiculous to judge a small boy's education by his ignorance of trigonometry and Virgil. Try him in geography and simple arithmetic and he may prove uncommonly well schooled.

All of us are ignorant and evil and craven and all of our accomplishments are contemptible if judged by some imaginary standard of perfection.

Yet most of the things in our world are altogether as they should be under the circumstances, and a tolerant adult mind will make due allowance for handicaps.

It is stupid to condemn a thistle because it doesn't bear figs.

Comment of the Press

Railroad Salaries.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Mr. Eastman, the Federal coordinator of transportation, who has been reported as quite exercised over the lack of response by the Pennsylvania Railroad to his appeal for a reduction of railroad executives' salaries, should now be satisfied. It was announced yesterday that Mr. Atterbury's salary had been reduced to $60,000 a year to conform to the salaries of other railroad presidents.

It is figured that all these salary reductions will save about $208,000 a year, while the operating expenses of th railroads last year totaled $2,205,000,000. If some of the "high-priced" executives such as Mr. Atterbury had not been consistently hampered in their endeavors to effect consolidations and other economies, they might have saved many millions of dollars.

Industrial Strife and Recovery.

Kansas City Star.

Perhaps the greatest obstacle the NRA has encountered is the clashing opinion of labor and industrial leaders over the meaning of the collective bargaining clause of the recovery act. Industrial strife has been the result in repeated instances, and it still is threatened. So urgent were the appeals of both labor and industry for an authoritative interpretation of the clause that, with Gen. Johnson's approval, the labor and industrial boards of the NRA prepared a joint statement on the matter. This the President has refused to sanction, taking the position that the clause must stand as written, that its language is clear and that no interpretation is needed.

But it is doubtful whether any governments will think it worth while to pay their expenses.

Just Folks.

To a Baby.

Just a little bunch of gladness,
Just a little pack of glee!
In this world no hint of sadness o
Or of trouble can you see.
Life is feast; life is laughter,
And a tickling of the chin.
Never mind what follows after,
Drain your bottle now and grin.

Lovely baby, shake your rattle
As I'm bending over you.
There'll be time enough for battle
And things which grown-ups do.
There'll be time enough to hurry
After things you want to win,
Time enough for care and worry—
Drain your bottle now and grin.

Oh, it's good to hear you cooing
At the breaking of the day;
Good to look at you reviewing
All the folks who come your way;
Good to see you know your mother
As she brings your bottle in,
And your father and your brother,
And it's good to see you grin.

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

I WOULD be the last one to minimize the seriousness of this outcry for inflation and the conditions behind it, except for the phase which has to do with the re-assertiveness of Elmer Thomas as a leader. That part is funny.

Bargeron.

Unless we have inflation Elmer will go down in history as the author of a most momentous, far-reaching and all-embracing bag of wind. That, so far, is all the celebrated act of the last Congress bearing his name appears to be. Now, of course, other senators have introduced ambitious and revolutionary bills which got nowhere, but in the case of Elmer his was passed—and has got nowhere. Which in the later reading of posterity will make Elmer look ridiculous.

Students of history will come to this thing and say to themselves: "Why, this is very funny. Here is an act of Congress by a man named Thomas providing for the transfer of wealth—I think Elmer once said $200,000,000,000 worth — from one class to another. Yet the transfer never came about."

Is there any doubt as to why Elmer is reasserting himself?

* * * *

IT must be borne in mind that among things the incumbent administration has done was to give leadership consciousness to Elmer. It has given a class consciousness to labor and an inferiority consciousness to bankers. But to Elmer it gave a leadership consciousness, quite unintentionally so, I think, but a consciousness nevertheless.

No serious attention had been paid to Elmer down on the hill, you know. He had been plugging away for inflation for goodness knows how long. But nobody seemed to worry or to care.

The story of how Elmer suddenly came into his own is most interesting. There had just been a vote in the Senate which showed the majority of senators for inflation. It somewhat alarmed the White House. It was at the outset of Mr. Roosevelt's administration, before he had had time to warm his seat. In those days senators, representatives and others were beating a steady path to the White House, advising this and advising that and seeking patronage and bounties.

* * * *

WELL, after the Senate inflation vote, Elmer decided he would not join the parade. He just sat down and wrote Mr. Roosevelt a letter explaining his inflation philosophy and suggesting a bill be passed giving the President authority to inflate if he found it desirable to do so.

Why, you would think that in the rush of things at the time the letter would never have reached the President, that it would have been held up by the fifth secretary. But somehow out of all the stack of letters going to the White House in those days this one found its way to the President. And he figuratively reached for the telephone, called the senator and said:

"I received your letter, come to see me."

None of Horatio Alger's heroes ever had such an experience as this. Why, it has marrying the boss' daughter after saving her in a horse runaway, skinned a block.

* * * *

OF course, Elmer was hailed far and wide as the country's monetary leader. I don't think Mr. Roosevelt ever intended to take him as this. In fact, the evidence now seems to be he took a bill bearing Elmer's name because of the optional rather than the monetary provisions it contained. In this event Elmer would be the country's optional leader rather than its monetary one.

But the bill gave Elmer a lot of prestige. His statements on finance came to get prominence in the papers they never had received before, and also Elmer came to be invited to gatherings where people wanted the monetary situation discussed. And brokers and other monetary men began calling upon Elmer to ask him what he thought about the financial outlook.

In fact, one of these brokers, after sitting at Elmer's knee one day, must have told him that if what was coming was what he said, then he, Elmer, should take a fly in the market. Because this is what Elmer did.

But the flight of the market ensuing about that time alarmed the more conservative minds, and one day, after a spree in distillery stocks, it came down with a thud. Elmer came down with it, too.

And in his anger he sent a telegram to the stock exchange, warning that the Congress was not going to stand for such goings-on as this.

AN ACRE UNDER GLASS.

For several years I have watched with great interest the culture under glass of fruits, vegetables and flowers on one of our farm institutes, and lately have been given some of the figures of production, says W. Beach Thomas, in the London Spectator. Off an acre and a quarter of ground the gross return within the year was £3,300-odd. The figures I give are beyond dispute. One acre of ground — under glass — has produced £2,640 worth of produce within the year, with a profit of at any rate over 10 per cent. The glass cultivation such as practiced in the Lea Valley or in Guernsey produces a greater amount of stuff without any excessive labor. Probably the future state will have immense areas under glass. Advance is continuous. Experiments are, I believe, being made not without good promise, in the use of vita glass for green plants such as lettuce, and there is probably a future for the use of electrical wires for warming the soil. Several interesting trials are being made in Liverpool and in Kent.

U. S. Relations With Soviets Seen by Nov. 1

Hull Reveals Roosevelt Now Has Recognition Up for Action.

Russian recognition before November 1 was predicted yesterday by informed Government officials after Secretary of State Hull had definitely confirmed the fact that President Roosevelt has the question before him for decision.

The President's designation yesterday of Henry Morgenthau, jr., farm credit administrator, to handle important pending trade negotiations with the Soviet, again precipitated the issue and brought from Secretary Hull the definite statement that Mr. Roosevelt is expected to act soon.

Although the Secretary said no definite date for recognition has been set, well-informed officials indicated action would come before November 1, and certainly before the reconvening of Congress brings together dissenters who might raise a storm over it.

Two Thorns Unplucked.

Mr. Hull pointed out that past talks with Russian representatives and present proposals for extensive trade relations should not by themselves be construed as completing the basis for recognition. By this he meant that questions relating to the settlement of American claims and to avoidance of Communist propaganda have yet to be dealt with by the State Department.

When the question is taken up for final decision by the President, he said, there would be no occasion for secrecy. Mr. Hull is publicly on record favoring recognition and he remarked with a pleased smile yesterday that speculation on recognition appeared to be on the increase, betokening steadily growing public interest.

From Boise, Idaho, came one echo yesterday in the shape of a statement by Senator Borah, long the Senate's most ardent champion of recognition, who hazarded the "opinion that the report that the President is soon to recognize Russia is well founded."

Borah Concurs.

"I was so advised before I left Washington," Mr. Borah told the Associated Press. "Of course, I do not mean to say I was so advised by the President. The President is too much of a realist to continue the archaic and illogical policy heretofore prevailing toward Russia.

"Russia is the greatest potential market for manufactured goods from this country and also some of our raw materials. Russia has been a heavy purchaser of our cotton and when diplomatic relations are established it is believed the amount Russia will purchase will be trebled.

"I think it a great deal better to sell our cotton than to plow it under. In fact, I believe in distribution rather than destruction. If the nations of the world would act with any degree of tolerance and cooperation we would be feeding hungry mouths and clothing people instead of reducing wheat and plowing under cotton."

Kalinin Note Prophetic.

The first sign of the Roosevelt administration's intention of ultimately recognizing the Soviet Union came when the President addressed his disarmament note to President Kalinin which was the first direct communication this Government had sent to the Soviet.

Mr. Roosevelt has been kept informed of negotiations now in progress, under Mr. Morgenthau's direction, looking to a Reconstruction Finance Corporation credit of $50,000,000 or more to finance sales of cotton, heavy machinery and other products to Russia. Boris Skvirsky, so-called unofficial "Soviet Ambassador" here; Peter A. Bogdanov, head of the Amtorg Trading Co., and other representatives of the Russian government have been carrying on conversations on these trade proposals.

Organized labor, various church organizations and other groups have fought recognition, but trade possibilities, opening the way to relieve agricultural surpluses and to stimulate heavy industry, have begun to outweigh all other considerations among officials and members of Congress.

School Days in Washington

By William Harlan Hale.

As a newcomer to Washington, with no axe to grind and no code to chisel, I naturally have plenty of time to spend wandering around town and looking into strange faces.

Some of the faces amaze me, they are so strange.

My way may take me past a large hotel, and there I frequently discover a scene somewhat like this:

A large, well-dressed man of about 50, business leadership written all over him, is walking from the hotel door in the general direction of the White House; he carries a brief-case that looks like the very fount of authority.

But the one thing out of keeping with this majestic presence is his face, which is downcast and visibly nervous. If, like a snooper, I shadow this gentleman for a while, I can observe the face growing more apprehensive and dejected.

By the time it reaches the White House gate it is really quite miserable. It is just as if a school boy—ah, that's precisely it, a school boy, with his brief-case full of books! All that is needed to complete the picture is a 9 o'clock school bell ringing from the White House portico.

This gentleman is not going to one of those private schools just beginning their terms; he has been going to what is very much of a public school, whose classes have been meeting the greater part of the summer. The examination period, far from being over, is still in full swing.

Before the pupils could even take their specific tests, some months ago they had to pass a general qualifying examination. This was a fairly easy one: It was humorously called the "blanket code," because it covered up a multitude of deficiencies.

Despite the trouble made by that trick question, Number 7a, the earlier individual exams were passed without much trouble; the topics were simpler ones, such as aviation, light and power, clothing, tobacco, &c.

Oil, a frequently troublesome subject, was mastered after several stiff periods of instruction over in the Commerce Building. The class had several difficulties in negotiating steel, and when it came to automobiles an outstanding, but rather difficult pupil even dare to "play hookey."

Worst of all, however, was the final examination in coal. Almost the whole class looked as if they were going to flunk out on that. It took several weeks of cramming to get them into shape. Luckily, they pulled through all right.

But the trouble is not over yet, not by a long shot. Whenever I go into a hotel I am sure to peer through a half-opened door into a ballroom where the strange rites of business men preparing for the NRA are in progress.

The chief features of these rites are long tables inevitably covered with green cloth. There is always a water-cooler at one end of the room, and a man with a gavel at the other. I don't know for sure, but in general I would say that the aroma of cigars issuing from the room lacks that refined quality which it had when issuing forth from similar rooms before 1929.

Taking my place in the corner with such a demure expression that the gentlemen at the table regard me, not as a spy, but merely as a colleague in financial difficulties. I listen to the proceedings.

They are causing a really remarkable amount of disorder.

There are, of course, several heavy speeches on working hours, minimum guarantees, profit margins, and so forth, which are meant to arm the penitents with facts as they go forth to meet their governmental Gabriel. But there are a far larger number of speeches voicing protest, exception, denunciation and disgust. People always seem to be threatening to get up and go hang it all.

But they never do. Promptly, when the time comes, they flock to the specified room in the Commerce Building. Sometimes the examination is public; more frequently, perhaps in view of the sensitivity of the candidates, it is held in private. Some times Dean Johnson is in the chair, sometimes Assistant Headmaster Richberg does the talking.

The younger instructors, Whiteside, Simpson, and so forth, handle the details. In most cases, Physical Training Instructor John R. Lewis stands over them, to see that no cribbing is going on.

It must be a bitter hour. But I had hoped that, when the ordeal was over, and the men were settled in their parlor cars pulling out of Union Station, there would be a spontaneous reaction of relief and joy. I thought they would continue the school boy resemblance, and do the equivalent of hollering, "Hey, Eddie! Drop your books an' c'mon down; the water's fine!" But they did nothing of the sort. They merely sat down quietly, unfolded their newspapers, and read. They read more codes. It seemed to have become a habit with them; they almost looked as if they liked it.

New Austrian Cabinet Gives Royalists Hope

(Copyright, 1933, by United Press.)

Vienna, Sept. 21 (U.P.).—Monarchists were optimistic tonight that the new dictatorial regime of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss would speed the restoration of the ancient Hapsburg line to the throne in Austria.

Royalists hailed the personnel of the new government as moving "the restoration" several steps nearer. They pointed out that five members of the cabinet have espoused the Hapsburg cause, while two others secretly favor them.

Appointment of Prince Schoenburg Hartenstein as state secretary for defense, under Dollfuss, cheered not only the monarchists, but all the Fascist-inclined and monarchical Heimwehr (Home Guards). Service Saves Busy Women Many Stitches

G Street Shop Alters and Mends Efficiently; New Gift Ideas Plentiful.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

The business woman who has little time to wield a needle for tacking, taking up and sewing on buttons, often finds her wardrobe in a sorry state. From season to season frocks hanging in her closets would be as good as new for a little changing around and fitting. A G street shop is prepared to take care of these matters for her, is prepared to do hemstitching, pleating, smocking, tucking, sheering, embroidering, anything in the sewing line. They'll even make your dresses for you if you like. And what's more they'll do all this at extremely reasonable prices.

Often you can pick up a little inexpensive dress that would look like a lot more if it were fitted properly. Let the proprietor of this shop tend to it for you and you'll be surprised at the money you can save.

Chanel, a leading fashion expert, strongly suggests that milady take advantage of the rhinestone glitter for her fall wardrobe. Make your darkest, dullest frocks shine and sparkle with bright little pins and clips. See that your hats and bags do the same. An F street store has a dazzling variety of these ornaments, in all shapes and sizes, moderately priced from $1 to $3. And while you're looking around ask to see their rhinestone bracelets and earrings. Some of these are trimmed in bits of mirror that add further to their scintillation.

If your birthday is any time in the near future and your husband's wearing a harassed look, you can bet it's your present he's worrying about. No matter how valiant a man may be, shopping for a woman can cause his face to blanch and his knees to tremble. For days he'll fret, then finally bring home a 10-pound box of candy, a dozen roses and a basket of fruit.

Now here's a way to subtly direct his choice. Clip this paragraph and place it where he'll be sure to see it. In this way he can read about the attractive ladies' dressing cases in a downtown store. They come in dark blue, green or black leather and are fitted with enamel sets which include comb, brush, mirror, fingernail file, powder jar, lotion bottle, tooth brush tube and clothes brush. An inner pocket has an oil silk lining to care for the wash cloth.

Despite the numerous styles of cigarette lighters, the chances are you haven't seen any like these. They're designed to look like little dogs, a Scotty, an English bull and a pointer. You tip their silver-plated heads and a flame leaps from their throats. These will be much more attractive than matches on your bridge table and quite ornamental in your living room. You can buy one for 69 cents.

To judge from the tempting perfume sales the stores are having, they're bound and determined to capture us all with their luring prices. You'll find it hard to resist the $2.20 value which sells for $1.49, or the $4.15 bottles, now $2.98. You have a choice of five scents: L'aiment, chypre, l'origan, Paris and emeraude.

The latest things in sewing cabinets are those shaped like little traveling bags. Open them up and you find plenty of room for your sewing, knitting and darning. There's also a handy little tray for your needles, pins, thread, &c. Whether you need one or not, you'll have to admit it's a fine idea for a present. The price is $1.

If you paid a goodly sum for your cleansing cream you should take precautions to economize on it. One of the most successful methods of doing this is to take it out of the jar with a spatula designed for that purpose. This isn't only economical, but sanitary as well. You can buy one in any pastel color you like in a Connecticut avenue shop for 25 cents.

Almost anyone can use an odd bowl or two around the house. They make nice center pieces filled with fruit, attractive nut containers, or general catch-me-alls. If you need one and don't feel like paying very much for it, maybe the one in an E street novelty shop will appeal to you. It's plain silver-finished metal, medium size, with cut-out work around the edge and in the bottom of it. Only 49 cents.

With all the handy-sized electric cooking utensils available now, a person can save a lot of money by cooking odds and ends in their hotel room. For instance, the little two-cup perculator. No trouble at all to tumble out of bed, fill it with water, put in the coffee and turn on the current. In no time the liquid part of your breakfast is ready. With the electric egg cookers and the small toasters, you can prepare your meals while you're getting dressed.

What's in Fashion?

Furs With Rich Luster Do New Coats Up Brown

Directed by Amos Parrish

Information as to where styles of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, The Washington Post, on request.

"Doing it up brown" is a favorite pastime with Fashion this season. And it's herself she does up . . . in coats trimmed with brown furs. Wary fashion reporters are going to count more brown-furs this winter than have been seen for a long time.

Good reason for it. Brown furs are not only flattering to any one who can wear brown at all, but the luster and richness of sable-like kolinsky, mink, durable beaver, dyed squirrel and the other brown furs of those types make you look and feel very expensive.

Last-Century Touch.

And as a final touch, brown furs add to that last-century flavor which women want to get into their new costumes. (Ask Dad—or Granddad. He knows. He'll remember the belles of his youth all dolled up in brown-fur-trimmed coats.)

Brown furs make a particularly beautiful blending with the new taupe shades of coat wools. And, of course, you don't need to be reminded how handsome they are on green or wine (as well as brown) coats.

Brown furs of the short-haired types mentioned make many of those smart scarf collars which are so warm. One type is sketched. Pouch collars, long, one-sided shawls, squared-off shawls and standing collars are also at their best in these furs.

Colors for Wardrobe.

If you choose a coat trimmed with brown fur, you'll want to build the rest of your fall and winter wardrobe around that. And our new color harmony chart will help you. It explains just what color dresses, hats and accessories to wear with these coats as well as with all the other smart coats.

Sweets Excellent For Children, If Given Discreetly

Advisability of sweets in the child's diet is an oft-debated subject, yet nutrition authorities will tell you it is a concentrated fuel food.

Sweets add interest to the diet, but must be given with discretion to children. After proteins and other building materials have been furnished—by meat, eggs, milk, fresh vegetables, fruits and potatoes—a moderate amount of sweets may be used to advantage to contribute flavor and to provide calories in a form quickly used by the body.

As a safeguard to the child's appetite and good nutrition, he should not be allowed to have sweets either between meals or early in the meal. It is important to establish the habit early of serving sweets only as dessert or immediately after a meal, and in limited quantities. In this way, sweets may become a very good incentive for the indifferent eater to clear his plate.

Charm Is Just Another Lesson To Be Learned

Mrs. Kendrick Phillips Will Conduct School for Washington Women.

A vivid little brown-eyed person who last winter delighted enthusiastic groups of distinguished Washington women with one innovation—dramatic book reviewing—this year will offer them something equally different—a school for charm!

"The idea really isn't mine," modestly disclaimed Mrs. Elizabeth Hardesty Phillips, wife of Kendrick Phillips, of 2906 Eighteenth street northwest, the school's sponsor.

"It simply grew out of popular demand. I had thought to conduct a weekly or fortnightly current events class, possibly dramatizing it a little, as I did the book reviews—but some of the younger girls, who helped me last year, thought that might be a bit stodgy, so we conceived the plan of a charm school."

She's Qualified.

Certainly Mrs. Phillips seemed qualified to wax authoritative on the subject of charm. She radiated vitality and good humor and poise. She wore her demure brown travel print suit and little peaked brown toque with just the right amount of modified dash.

When she had ordered her luncheon with discrimination and consumed it with relish, she lighted a cigarette and said:

"No matter how charming the individual, there are certain elements in everyone's personality which can be further developed through the adaptation of current influences.

"I might even say that charm can be entirely manufactured and superimposed upon the person who does not possess it, providing that person is a sufficiently plastic student. One of our leading actresses, recently selected as possessing most of that intangible thing, 'charm,' blushingly confessed hers was mostly a matter of borrowed tricks, wisely used.

Rooted in Kind Heart.

"True charm, of course, has its roots in true kindness of heart. Snobbery is the deadly enemy of charm. It has to do with poise, of course; with a balanced coordination of all one's faculties and talents, and it is expressed through interest in other people."

Mrs. Phillips, who had planned to open her charm school in the former Hester Bell Provensen studio in Stoneleigh Court, at Connecticut avenue and L street northwest, early in October, already is faced with the necessity of obtaining larger quarters, so great is the demand for registration in her classes.

Stylist on Staff.

There will be a stylist, Walya, a young Russian who has had continental experience in ensembling costumes for women, according to their type and coloring, "from the fluffy to the bizarre," Mrs. Phillips chuckled.

There will be a makeup artist from one of Washington's leading beauty salons, who will give advice on facial makeup for daytime and evening, with relation to individual type and coloring, as well as to costuming and lighting effects.

Miss Marian Chase, of the Denishawn Dancers, will lecture on the relationship of dancing to physical coordination and poise.

The part which practical as well as cultural education plays in giving assurance and charm to women, will be discussed by Miss Marjorie Webster, mistress of a girls' finishing school in Washington.

Mrs. Phillips will keep her students abreast of the times with regard to art, literature, current events, drama and music.

"Every woman knows the advantage she has when she can talk intelligently about what's going on in the world of affairs and politics," she explained. "She is at ease in any company when she knows what books are being written, what plays are being shown, what's doing in music, something about the arts."

Most Lack Time.

"And once the season opens in Washington, women have practically no time to devote to a thorough study of these things. I hope to give it to them in summarized form. I expect to have an occasional musicale, with a good artist, and to maintain a library where students can find any book they may want at a moment's notice.

"Moreover, I expect to bring to women's attention some of the rudimentary facts about feminine allure. Jewels, perfumes, gloves, such feminine trifles, play a tremendous part in a woman's charm."

Last winter, with Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes, Mrs. Claude Swanson, Mrs. Sol Bloom, Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie and other Washington women as patronesses, Mrs. Phillips gave a series of dramatic book reviews at the Carlton Hotel.

What Today Means

"Virgo"

If September 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 to 9 a. m., from 12 noon to 1:20 p. m. and from 4:45 to 5:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 to 11:15 a. m., from 6:30 to 7 p. m. and from 9 to 10:20 p. m.

People generally will feel in need of entertainment on this day. This would seem to augur well for the theater and movie groups and for others who offer amusement for sale. Do not be surprised if the unexpected happens on this day; people will not run true to form. Those in love will find themselves on the opposite sides of almost every question that comes up; harsh words will be exchanged.

The child born on this September 22 will try to get his own way in all things; he will be much more inclined to follow suggestions rather than to carry out orders or directions. He will never be without a come-back and will not allow any one to put anything over on him. Will use sarcasm to good effect.

If September 22 is the date of your birth, you are more than likely a person who, by virtue of the sweetness and love which you manifest toward others, will get just about all that you go after. People try to do things for you and more often than not they anticipate your wants. You spend much of your time in trying to make people see the bright and cheery side of life. You like to see people have a good time, and every time you succeed bringing joy to others it contributes great happiness to you. You are an unselfish person, willing to put yourself out in order to give another a lift and never satisfied until you have accomplished all that you have set out to do.

Born on September 22, you are a cautious person; you act only after careful consideration and seldom do you err in your judgment. You seem to bring out the best that is in people. Although you leave yourself open to injury and harm from those who prey on others, your calm trust in human nature prevents them from taking advantage of you. You will probably live to a ripe old age and more than likely you will always be active and well able to get around by yourself. In spite of your many fine qualities it is possible that you will have difficulties of a matrimonial nature. Divorce is not at all outside the realm of probability, and the chances are that you will suffer a good deal because of the actions of some one you love.

Successful people born on September 22:

Joseph Seligman, banker.

William W. Belknap, soldier and Secretary of War.

Stephen D. Lee, soldier.

MRS. KENDRICK PHILLIPS, of 2906 Eighteenth street northwest, who plans to open a school for charm in Washington.

Woman Union Leader Spurns Fads and Frills

Esther Penn Comes Here as A. F. G. E. Delegate and Lands a Big Job.

Cigarette smoking has never appealed to Esther Penn, newly elected secretary-treasurer of the American Federation of Government Employes.

Neither have cocktails and late hours.

She does like an occasional glass of beer, however.

"If the day is warm and the beer is cold, I like it for refreshment, just as I like a glass of milk when I am hungry," she declared.

Only Women Executive.

Since her recent elevation to the post of only woman national executive of the A. F. G. E., the Seattle (Wash.) girl has been setting her male conferees a difficult pace in getting things done at the national headquarters, in the Ouray Building, Eighth and G streets northwest, west.

An employe of Veterans' Administration, in Washington and Seattle, since 1918, Miss Penn was active in the membership of the National Federation of Government Employes until its split with the American Federation of Labor last year. For seven years she was a delegate to the Central Labor Council of Seattle.

Feeling that Government employes' interests are best served through cooperation with the American Federation of Labor, Miss Penn severed her connection with the national federation following the rift.

Helped Form New Group.

She was active in organizing the American Federation of Government Employes as an affiliation of the A. F. of L. Lodges in Seattle, Bremerton, Yakima and Blaine, Wash., and in Victoria, B. C., were organized by Miss Penn.

"Through our lodge in Victoria, B. C., we became an international organization," she declared proudly.

"We are working for the improvement and betterment of working conditions for Government employes, while at the same time protecting the interests of their employer, the United States Government. Through legislation, arbitration and collective bargaining, with the Government, the Congress and the President, we are gaining our objectives."

Diminutive and Unbobbed.

Miss Penn, who is small and very pretty, has never bobbed her wavy brown hair, just tinged with gray.

"Knowing how women change their minds, when the bob first appeared, I decided to wait a few years to see if the style caught on. Then, just about the time it seemed to have come to stay and I was thinking of having mine cut, girls began growing their hair out again," she laughed. "Now I am glad I never did it. I guess long hair suits me best."

She studied at the University of Washington, in Seattle, and at Bellingham (Wash.) State Normal School. When she came to Washington a week ago in her capacity of seventh vice president of the federation, to attend the annual convention, she had every intention of returning speedily to her work in the Veterans' Bureau at Seattle. Now it looks as though she will not return for a long time.

She is a sister of Nancy Sheridan, actress, who played the role of Nina in "Strange Interlude" at the National Theater here two years ago and last year toured the country in the title role of "Cynara."

Soothing Facial Gives World A New Glow

Conviction of Beauty Given By Expert Ministration Expands Ego.

A panacea for 90 per cent of the woes of the average woman, be she society leader, business woman, or housewife, can be found in a leisurely, luxurious facial.

Administered by an expert, in harmonious and tasteful surroundings provided by the better class beauty salons, this treatment relaxes taut nerves, rests jumpy eyes, lubricates and refines harsh skin and, moreover, contributes so large and mysterious a sum to a woman's "psychic income" that she will rise to find herself treading as on air, after an hour or two of such treatment.

Psychoanalysts have learned that people's happiness and adjustment to their surroundings depend very largely on the state of their ego, whether it is starved or temperately fed.

Self-Approval—That's It!

"Psychic income" has to do with those sources of supply within or without ourselves, which contribute to the sum total of our self-approval and self-admiration. What others think of us is not nearly so important to our well-being as what we know about ourselves. And the world at large is very prone to accept us at our own evaluation for that matter.

Nothing is more necessary to a woman's ego than to feel that she is beautiful. And nothing is more likely to give her an aura of allure than an inner consciousness that she is, indeed, lovely.

That is where the properly administered facial plays so large a part. The woman does not exist who can resist the implication of personal importance and personal loveliness, conveyed by the earnest ministrations of a beauty expert during a facial massage.

Balm for the Skin.

First there is the skin-cleansing treatment. This is followed usually by generous applications of warm, penetrating oils. These are wiped away, to be supplanted, possibly, by hot applications for clearing clogged pores. Special unguents are used on the throat to bring up a glowing, refreshing rush of circulation. The face is bathed with refreshing skin lotion, invigorated with the application of carefully swathed ice bags. Eyes are cleansed and toned with special eye drops. Then follows the "tie-up," when the face is masked with special packs, the eyes are covered with pads, and a long, soothing rest period ensues and the soothed and rested client is apt to doze off into a refreshing "40 winks," from which she emerges to find herself radiantly blooming, when the packs have been removed.

Try the treatment sometime, you harassed, nervous, overtired women. You will find yourself stepping out into the world again with a brand-new elastic spring in your step, with an assured sparkle in your eye. Your pleasure in yourself will reap its recognition in glances of interest from whomsoever you chance to meet.

Night Scene.

Waters of the dark lake sleep
Sad mists rise and slowly creep
Inshore, where trees in silence weep.

Leaves like lazy butterflies
Fall to earth, with gentle sighs.
Far away a lone bird cries.

Let me sleep where night winds blow
The mists that rise, and pine trees grow
Where dark, deep waters sleep below.

Author of "Old Kentucky Home" Will Live Again in Biography

Indianapolis, Sept. 21.—That gentle and nostalgic musician, Stephen Collins Foster, at last is to have a "definitive" biography.

Or so Josiah K. Lilly feels. Mr. Lilly is in charge of Foster Hall here, in which is the largest collection of material dealing with Foster to be found today.

The biographer is John Tasker Howard, who for many years has been interested in Foster, and the book will be entitled "Dear Friends and Gentle Hearts," which sentimental little phrase was found on a scrap of paper in Foster's pocketbook after his death. Mr. Howard has spent considerable time in Indianapolis going through the material collected by Mr. Lilly.

"The American Schubert."

Foster is called "the American Schubert" by Mr. Howard, who finds such appealing apostrophes to the sweetness of the past as "Old Folks at Home," "My Old Kentucky Home" and the world-famous serenade, "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming" as close to the Schubert tradition as anything written in this country.

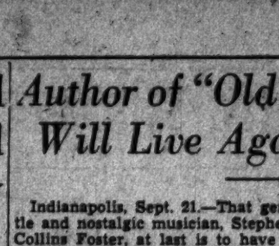
"Of all American composers," declares Mr. Howard, "Foster probably has left us the most lasting heritage. In his own field of simple songs, Foster is without a peer. I know of no other composer from any nation who has written as many songs of this kind which have survived as did Foster.

Made Crude Tunes Immortal.

"He found the songs of the minstrel shows crude and vulgar, but he made them a literature well worth preserving. He brought sincerity and genuine feeling to a medium that before his entry had reeked of the alley and the barroom. In addition, the sentiment of his songs was true to the period in which he lived.

"Foster's product was highly individual, but at the same time it bespoke America."

The book will contain, Mr. Lilly points out, a good deal of material hitherto unknown; particularly letters whose contents have only recently been made available. The Foster family had prominent connections and the letters reflect the life of the times in Pittsburgh, Washington and New York, as well as the life of Foster.



The Family Marketer

Crab Flakes and Trout Hold Stage in Fish Market; Lamb is Prime.

There are two good bets on the fish market today—crab flakes and trout. The bad weather conditions last week served to intimidate the denizens of the water world so that now they refuse to come out of their snug hiding places. However, the brazen trout are taking chances. As a consequence they are more plentiful and less costly than other varieties. Here's an opportunity to buy good trout, 15 cents a pound.

And crabs, too. They're here in abundance, selling for 30, 40, or 50 cents.

If, instead of having fish today, you're looking around for a suitable meat, you may be interested to hear that pork has risen considerably in price. In the wholesale market it went up 5 and 6 cents a pound, a fact which is reflected in the retail price of 23 cents a pound.

Lamb a Best Seller.

Genuine spring lamb is one of the present best sellers. That's an idea for dinner tonight. You can buy leg of lamb for 25 cents a pound.

When you're shopping for lamb, be careful that you don't happen on the old cuts.

Neither fish, pork nor lamb, you say? Well, what about ground beef? Buy a pound of this for 15 cents and cook yourself a nice juicy hamburger steak. Smother it in onions—and what could be better?

Tomatoes Going Up.

Tomatoes are fulfilling predictions. They're mounting in price day by day. On the wholesale market they are $1.50 for half a bushel and in the retail stores it's necessary to pay 10 cents a pound for them. During the winter we had better adapt ourselves to the canned variety if we want to keep within our budget.

The little yellow tomatoes, so excellent for preserves, are getting scarce, although they maintain the same price of 5 cents a pound. The green tomatoes, which make such choice pickles, are becoming even more scarce, but if you can find them, they're worth the trouble of pickling. And it's simple to do. Boil them in vinegar until they're done, then add your favorite spices.

Lima beans are here at 40 cents a quart, and they're not half as good as they were.

What's this? A recipe for the cranberry wine we inquired about! Thank you, Mrs. McHenry, for responding so promptly.

It takes two quarts of cranberries, 3 pounds sugar, ½ pound raisins, 1 orange, 1 lemon, ½ yeast cake, 1 gallon of water.

Chop berries. Pour boiling water over them. When cool, add the sugar, yeast, chopped raisins, orange and lemon. Mix well. Let it stand three weeks. Strain and bottle. Then just sit around and wait for six months.

Seckel pears are coming in from California, bigger and better than ever. Ask for the very fancy ones and you'll get them almost as big as an ordinary pear, but sweet and juicy as only seckels can be.

-:- Radio Waves and Ripples -:-

A fan sent Lucille Long a Spitz puppy, so N. B. C. photographers got out their cameras, with the above result. Miss Long has been radioing contralto quite frequently of late. Stock and musical shows preceded Georgia Backus' radio arrival. Now she writes scrips for N. B. C. plays, and sometimes directs them. She attended Ohio State University.

AN all-Washington show will precede WOL's inauguration of the new Ed Wynn broadcast chain Monday night.

Program Director Ted Ostenkamp yesterday assembled for a half hour's radioing, at 7:30, Crooner Charles Mayer, Blues Singer Fay Fliedner, Accordionist Fran Trappe, Pianists George Emmons (jazz), and Elizabeth Gardner Coombs (classical) and Barytone Joseph Bruno.

WJSV yesterday picked Rudolph Schramm to handle musical arrangements for the Monday and Friday Wilkins Coffee shows. Schramm's last assignment was directorship of the Borden After-Dinner Club, closed by WJSV Wednesday night.

Hunting members suited for Tenor Phil Crist's aircasting will be Schramm's first job.

From Carnegie Hall, New York's Rabbi Stephen S. Wise will conduct Day of Atonement services from behind a Columbia microphone Saturday, September 30. The same broadcast will carry the Free Synagogue Choir singing Lewandowski's scoring of "Lift Up Your Heads," the "Adony Adony," the traditional "Shmai Yisroel" and the offertory, "O Lord Most Holy."

"Songs of Israel" is the N. B. C. contribution, for which radiocasters have offered their talents. Tenor John Pierce, Soprano Viola Philo and Violinist Josef Stopak have been assigned 8 p. m. Monday.

Waves—

WMAL lost three of its Breakfast Club performers yesterday.

Floating and dead in the aquarium were Goldfish Lord Plushbottom and Abba II and a nameless salamander, when Clubman Arthur Godfrey came to work. Still living were the turtle and the guppies.

It seems the aquarium water hadn't been changed for some time.

WJSV Reporter Ted Church has been given a new outlet, for the Columbia station will start another news broadcast Monday from 11:15 to 11:30 p. m.

WRC's Hinkle rug program received talent and title yesterday. It will be "Festival of Music," with Edwin Steffe, Atwater-Kent audition barytone, and a concert orchestra.

And WRC "Singing Reporter," Harvey Townsend, stepped forward with another contest idea. He'll form a junior reporters' club and reward the week's best story teller with a broadcast; the best narrator of the month with a free auto painting.

Five Washington schoolboys do a bit of microphoning in behalf of traffic safety at WMAL tonight at 7:45.

Cook's Shortage Reported as $953

Governor Gets Report on Audit in Roanoke.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 21 (Spl.).—A report by State Auditor L. McCarthy Downs, which was turned over to the governor states that Charles W. Cook, resigned treasurer of Roanoke County, had falsified his accounts and records to the extent of $953.77.

Auditors say the former treasurer collected this amount in taxes, and made out and pasted in his tax books, duplicate tickets marked "improper."

The report also says Cook gave as reasons for his actions "that he had certain personal obligations due and he used these funds for the purpose of meeting those obligations with the intention of replacing the funds and again changing his records before the close of the fiscal year."

Ab Jenkins, Famous Racing Driver, Smashes Every Official World Mark From 200 to 3,000 Miles in a Pierce Arrow Special--Averages 117.8 Miles Per Hour For 24 Hours--Amoco-Gas Used Exclusively.

GET this picture! A stretch of salt bordering the Great Salt Lake in Utah . . . glaring white by day . . . shot with shadow by night . . . and a dare-devil in a Pierce Arrow Special ripping records to pieces. Hour after hour. Day and night.

That's the setting in which Ab Jenkins, famous racing pilot, broke every official A.A.A.* world record from 200 to 3,000 miles. His average for 3,000 miles was 117.8 miles per hour--amazing! For there were no banked turns. No concrete. Just salt!

A terrific test for man--motor--automobile--and fuel.

Ab Jenkins knew his motor and his fuel. Only AMOCO-GAS--the original special motor fuel--was used. So insistent was Jenkins that only AMOCO-GAS be used, that the American Oil Company shipped a supply all the way to Salduro, Utah.

(1) Greater and smoother power.

(2) More miles per gallon.

(3) A cool motor.

You'll always notice that when there's a big job to be done by a motor, AMOCO-GAS is chosen. And rightly! For it gives the greatest all-round performance--and the lowest cost per mile--of all motor fuels. In all cars--all makes--your own included. Convince yourself.

Benefit Life's Agency Here 88 Years Old

Staff to Honor Anniversary in All-Day Meeting; 50 to Attend.

Washington agency of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Newark, N. J., is 88 years old today. Members of the agency will celebrate the event with an all-day meeting. One session will be at Hamilton Hotel and a second at Kenwood Golf and Country Club. Fifty persons will be in attendance.

In September, 1845, Joseph C. Lewis was appointed general agent of the company for the District of Columbia. In that month he wrote insurance on Ancus M. Hoffar, dentist, and William J. Anderson, merchant, of Georgetown, and the following Washingtonians: Thomas B. Griffin, merchant; Samuel Kirby, cabinet maker; Charles F. Wood, builder; John Ferguson, clerk; Sylvanus Holmes, grocer, and Robert Clarke, carpenter.

Subsequently, the company has done business in Washington without interruption to date and now has $25,000,000 of insurance in force on 3,500 local persons.

List of Speakers.

The speakers at the morning session will include Jay Ream, general agent at Pittsburgh; Miss Mildred F. Stone, Newark, editor of publications; Dr. Earl V. Sweet, Newark, medical director, and Walter E. Barton, local attorney. The evening meeting will be addressed by Leo Rover, United States attorney for the District of Columbia.

H. Lawrence Choate, who is the seventh general agent to represent the company in Washington, will preside.

The agency has had a remarkable record. On August 1 it was announced that it had eclipsed all records for July in the 88 years of its history, with the exception of one year, 1925. The agency showed in July, 1933, a gain in new "paid for" business of two and a half times as much as that of May, 1933.

It also exhibited a 50 per cent increase over June, 1933, and a more than 200 per cent increase over July, 1932. The agency total of $348,780 of new life insurance equaled a total of more than $20,000 per agent for the entire agency force of 12 men. The leader on volume was George T. Howard. John H. Snyder led on number of lives insured and the partnership of Gibson & Scott on amount of new premiums collected.

Report of Dividends.

Several dividends were reported yesterday. It was announced that directors of American Security & Trust Co. have declared a dividend of 2 per cent, payable October 10, to stockholders of record September 30.

Another announcement was that Woodward & Lothrop directors have voted the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on the preferred stock and 30 cents on the company's common stock, both payable September 29 to stock of record September 20.

A third announcement was that Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., will pay the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the common stock October 1, to shareholders of record September 8. The dividend of $1.62½ on the preferred was paid September 15.

There was little business on Washington Stock Exchange yesterday. Capital Traction sold in two 10-share lots at 12½, latest sale figure. Five shares of Potomac Electric Power 5½ preferred moved at 107½, fractional recession. There were no bond transactions.

Move Made to Cut Charge for Loans

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—Representatives of member banks of the New York Clearing House Association today approved a proposed change in the organization's constitution which will cut in half the fee now charged out-of-town banks for making loans on call for their account on stock exchange collateral.

Under the proposed amendment, which is to be ratified by member banks at another meeting tomorrow, the out-of-town banks will be charged 25 per cent of the interest received, but not less than one-quarter of 1 per cent so long as the call loan rate is 2 per cent or less.

The change in rates is said to be not only a bid for out-of-town banks to increase their employment of funds in Wall street, but a recognition that the present rates of one-half of 1 per cent, which now rules for "outside" call funds, tends to restrict these loans in the financial district. Under the new rule, the local banks would split equally with the country banks the interest received at one-half of 1 per cent for call money while the later would receive a larger proportionate share if the call rate rises.

Bond Market Drops in Spite Of Firm Loans

Federal and Other High Grade Issues Resist General Slump.

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—With the cooling of inflationary ardor, secondary bonds slipped sharply along with stocks today while United States Government securities and some prime corporation investment loans firmed moderately.

Railway liens were the principal sufferers in the liquidating retreat, although low-priced utilities and industrials were under more than usual pressure.

The trading volume again expanded with the decline, sales totaling $16,687,000, par value. The average for 60 domestic corporate maturities was off one point, the sharpest recession since July 21, last.

The more speculative bonds apparently reflected the weakness of shares and commodities and the higher grade groups, including the Federals, responded partly to the waning of recent currency expansion enthusiasm. Issues that managed to rally fractionally to around a point included some of American Telephone, American Smelting, Union Pacific, Consolidated Gas, St. Joseph Lead, Shell Pipe Line, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Western Electric.

Among the most active carrier losers, off 1 to more than 5 points, were some loans of Allegheny Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Chesapeake Corporation, St. Paul, Chicago & North Western, Erie, Great Northern, Illinois Central, K. C. Southern, Missouri Pacific, New Haven, Northern Pacific, Southern Pacific, Southern and Wabash.

Similar declines were suffered by issues of American & Foreign Power, American I. G. Chemical, American International, Dodge Brothers, Goodyear, Goodrich, International Telephone, North American, Philadelphia Reading Coal & Iron, Remington Rand, Texas Corporation, Utilities Power & Light, Vanadium, Warner Brothers and Western Union.

Expectations of heavier Federal Reserve open-market operations in the future aided the Government list. Although there were a few minor declines, gains of 1-32 to 5-32 of a point were in the majority.

Gold bonds of the Dutch East Indies fell 2 to more than 10 points, and French Government and municipal issues were off around 3. Obligations of Switzerland, Sweden, Germany, Argentina, Poland and Brazil sagged 1 to 4 or more. The Canadians and Cubans were steady to firm.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Rayon—The trade hears that leading yarn producers closed their books for November with potential output for that month more than sold up. Some quarters predict that the allotment system will have to remain in effect through November, at least as regards the more popular weaving counts.

Woolens—"Men's wear mills are estimated to have booked orders running into thousands of pieces," says the New York Wool Top Exchange. "Smaller mills began to share in the increased business this week, and in many instances booked enough orders to warrant full-time operations until the end of the year."

Floor coverings—Dealers say that the marked increase in broad-loom carpeting sales is due to the modernistic trend in house furnishings.

Tin—The maintenance of prices at or near peak levels has lessened the desire of consumers to place orders, according to market observers. Business is reported quiet in the leading markets.

Speculative Stocks Sink As Inflation Hope Dims

Shares, sold heavily, had their worst break since July 21, which was the second day of the big summer collapse.

Stocks dropped in all departments, although the recently depressed utilities, which had offered least attraction to those seeking quick profits in the event of inflation, did not fare so badly by comparisons with industrials and rails. Traders sold metal and alcohol shares freely; they also disposed of carrier holdings. Generally speaking, the hardest hit issues were those which had been most strongly boosted by the bull camp.

The market pattern conformed rather closely to yesterday's, except that the final downswing was more pronounced and more active. Early heaviness was partially overcome by a feeble afternoon rally; then the slump was resumed and trading acquired large momentum, piling up a total volume of 3,651,384 shares.

U. S. Steel slumped well under 50, of 3½ net at 47⅞; the preferred's loss was 5⅛. American Can, General Motors, Chrysler, National Biscuit, Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific crumbled 3 to around 5, while Santa Fe was down almost 6, U. S. Smelting, Case, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Owens-Illinois apparently 7, and National Distillers 9. The net decline in the Standard Statistics-Associated Press Composite was 5.2 points.

Dollars started bravely, but then lost ground to leading European currencies. The initial strength was attributed to covering by foreign speculators, who later put out new short lines. The pound at one time was off 4 cents and the French franc 1-10 cent.

Washington advices in the afternoon said that the President, in receiving the cotton conference delegation, would discuss only cotton, whereas the group's plan had been to talk also of inflation. The inference to the markets was that the administration intended to stand pat on its present program of assisting business recovery through credit expansion, and in the light of these deductions recent buyers presumably decided to retreat to more conservative positions. Selling for foreign account was said to have been substantial.

Contrary to expectations in some quarters, the Reserve System did not step up its open-market operations during the last week. The statement disclosed that purchases had been limited to approximately $35,000,000, or the average weekly addition of the last month. Other changes in the statement were relatively minor, although total reserve bank credit was up $31,000,000.

New York City member banks increased their investments $68,000,000, mostly in U. S. Government securities, but a drop of $70,000,000 in loans made a net loss of $2,000,000 for earnings assets. The fall in loans was entirely in security accommodations, which dropped $77,000,000; against this was a $7,000,000 rise in "all others," or commercial loans, suggesting a small expansion of business borrowing.

Banks Name Committee To Study Wider Credits

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—In harmony with the Washington administration's efforts to make credit more readily available to business, the New York Clearing House Association member banks have organized a committee to serve under the NRA primarily to investigate the possibility of expanding bank credits, it was announced today.

The committee, it was stated, will deal particularly with small loans. Its chairman is Percy H. Johnston, president of the Chemical Bank & Trust Co., who will serve with 13 other officers of leading clearing house banks.

	Thur.	Wed.
Advances	44	103
Declines	735	535
Unchanged	57	122

Stocks—Apparent weakening of inflationary props sent speculative values tumbling. Losses averaged 5.2 points, the heaviest since July 21. Declines affected all departments. Sales increased in volume to 3,651,384 shares.

Bonds—Secondary loans led the market in a slump. Federal and other prime investments held firm. Losses averaged 1 point. Sales mounted to $16,687,000.

Curb—Heavy losses resulted under a selling drive. Oils and metals resisted for a time, but finally gave way in the downward sweep. The turnover increased to 388,000 shares.

Wheat—A semidemoralization seized the market and prices of wheat dropped the limit allowed in 24 hours. Speculators' selling was blamed. September wheat sold at 87¼, May at 95.

Cotton—Cotton broke sharply again in sympathy with the stock and grain markets. Active liquidation and scattered selling sent the price of December down to 9.65; October sold 9.43 to 9.46.

Rubber—Crude rubber closed steady, 32 to 51 lower. September sold at 7.20; December, at 7.36.

Sugar—Raw sugar was unchanged at 3.62; refined was easier and declined to 4.60.

Coffee—Spot coffee demand was steady. Santos No. 4 sold at 9 to 9¼; Rio No. 7, at 7½.

Gold—Bar gold sold in the United States at $31.33 per ounce; in London, at 132 shillings and 9 pence.

Dollar—The United States dollar gained on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $4.79 to the British pound; 6.08 cents to the French franc, and 37.10 cents to the German mark.

Foreign Markets.

Sept. 21 (A.F.).—

London—Business on the stock exchange was done on a small scale today. Mid-European political affairs and the diversified nature of reports regarding the American financial situation and currency consideration tended to restrict trading. The fall in the price of bar gold caused South African gold mining shares to lose ground, while German bonds recovered part of their recent setback. Gilt-edged securities were firm, but international issues declined. The market closed dull.

Paris—The bourse was hesitant, with prices tending downward, including the recently advancing rentes. Oil shares and industrials were lower, but electric and dyestuff plan issues improved. The closing was heavy.

Berlin—Prices on the bourse opened firm owing to the government's economic program and the improvement of the dollar. The market closed irregular.

Curb Suffers Heavy Losses Under Selling

Oils and Metals Give Up After Resisting; Trading, 388,000 Shares.

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—The curb market suffered heavy losses today as a wave of selling in the last hour carried values off 1 to 5 points or more. All categories closed heavy. Oils and metals resisted for a time in the forenoon dip, which was followed by a mild rally of short duration.

A number of specialties sustained sharp drops. Among them were losses of 6 to 7 points in Parker Rust Proof, Singer Manufacturing and Safety Car Heating, while General Tire & Rubber toppled 12. Hiram Walker and Gulf Oil sagged about 5 each.

Issues yielding 2 to around 4 points included Aluminum Co. of America, Armstrong Cork, Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A," Commonwealth Edison, Cord Corporation, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Electric Bond & Share, New Jersey Zinc, Newmont, Humble Oil and Glen Alden Coal.

Transfers approximated 388,000 shares, compared with 378,000 for yesterday.

Farrell Denies Tariff Cut Aids Export Trade

Former Steel Head Says U. S. Foreign Business Prospers on Duties.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 21 (AP).—James A. Farrell, former head of the U. S. Steel Corporation, declared today that recovery of the Nation's export trade "does not call for a drastic lowering of our tariff."

In an address for delivery to the intermountain economic conference, he said the theory that exports could be stimulated by an increase in imports through a lowering of tariffs by a 10 per cent horizontal reduction, "is based apparently on the mistaken assumption that there is a direct connection between our tariff and the decline in imports in the last four years."

He said the history of America's import trade shows that the rise and fall of imports "does not correspond with tariff changes but with variations in trade prosperity."

Growth of America's export trade under a protective tariff system is "abundant reason," Farrell said "why we should refuse to substitute for it the disturbing uncertainties of a radical change. The recovery of our export trade, so essential to full development of our economic system, does not call for a drastic lowering of our tariff. In my judgment, our export trade is destined to go forward to higher levels in the future. We have only scratched the surface of the world's possibilities in trade expansion."

Discussing the Roosevelt Recovery program, Farrell said that "increased volume of business is the way out of the depression," and said the success of the recovery plan "depends in no small degree on the contribution made by our foreign trade."

Nation's Gold Hoarders Cut From 342 to 284

(Associated Press.)

The Justice Department said yesterday the number of known gold hoarders had been reduced in the last week from 342 to 284, with an accompanying drop in the total amount from $1,515,588 to $1,467,182.

Some 217 of the hoarders were said to have distributed their holdings among members of their families and intimate friends in an effort to evade the law, which prohibits one person to have more than $100.

Pay Rolls Rise Over Country Under NRA Act

Hourly Earnings in June and July Increased 42.7 to 48.5 Cents.

Average hourly earnings of employes of firms reporting to the Bureau of Labor Statistics increased from 42.7 cets to 48.5 from June 15 to July 15.

This was announced yesterday by Secretary Perkins, who also said the average hour's work per week dropped from 42.3 to 38.6. The figures cover 89 manufacturing industries, and indicate, she said, a $12,000,000 increase in manufacturing pay rolls.

Miss Perkins credited the changes in hourly wage and hours of labor to the fact that most of industries have accepted the blanket code under the NRA agreement and that seven were under codes approved by President Roosevelt.

Reports from Industries.

In a statement issued by the Secretary she said the various industries under approved codes showed the following results:

Cotton goods—Hourly wages increased from 23.2 cents per hour to 36.1 and hours of labor dropped from 49 to 36.5.

Woolen and worsted goods industry—Wage rates increased from 35.8 to 43.3 and hours dropped from 48.5 to 41.2.

Shipbuilding—Wages rose from 56.4 to 61.7 and hours were reduced from 36.6 to 30.3.

Electrical machinery—Wage rates increased from 53.7 to 57 cents, and hours dropped from 38.1 to 35.4.

Women's clothing—Wage rates rose from 34.4 to 43.3, and hours dropped from 38.9 to 35.1.

Corsets and allied garments—Wage rate increased from 35.3 to 41.3, and hours dropped from 39.8 to 39.3.

Lace—Data were unavailable when the study was made.

Other Industries' Results.

Dyeing and textile finishing—Wages increased from 37.1 to 49.7, and hours dropped from 49.5 to 36.3.

Silk goods—Wage rates increased from 31.5 to 41.5, and hours dropped from 42.1 to 36.7.

"The decrease in hours worked per week and the increase in hourly earnings over the same period," the secretary said, "were correspondingly great in numerous other industries. * * *

"Taking the average picture, the average worker during this month received approximately the same weekly wages, had more time for leisure and personal advancement and additional workers obtained employment by the device of shortening the work week."

Bank of England.

London, Sept. 21 (A.P.).—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes in pounds: Total reserve increased 2,051,000; circulation decreased 2,063,000; bullion decreased 13,000; other securities increased 2,517,000; public deposits increased 5,953,000; other deposits decreased 4,476,000; notes reserve increased 2,063,000; government securities decreased 3,099,000.

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liability is 48.56 per cent, compared with 47.76 last week. Rate of discount, 2 per cent.

Wool Market.

Boston, Sept. 21 (A.P.) (U. S. Dept. Agr.).—A very active demand is being received on a wide selection of greasy domestic wools. Prices generally are very strong and tend higher. Fine Ohio delaine sells readily at 32 to 33 cents in the grease, but houses asking 34 cents are not getting the call at the moment. Good bright strictly combing 53s, 60s, ¼ blood Ohio and similar fleeces are mostly firm at 34 cents in the grease, and 35 cents is being asked by some houses having very limited offerings.

Cotton Breaks Sharply Again On Liquidation

December Closes at 9.65 as General Market Loses 40 to 47 Points.

New York, Sept. 21 (AP).—Cotton broke sharply again today in sympathy with the stock and grain markets.

Active liquidation and scattered selling sent the price of December cotton off to 9.65, or nearly a cent a pound below the high of last Tuesday. The final tone of the market was barely steady with prices at net losses of 40 to 47 points.

After early losses of 20 to 25 points the market rebounded almost to yesterday's closing quotations on covering and trade buying accompanied by reports that plans for disposing of surplus stocks to Russia and other foreign countries were still under consideration.

Rise Meets Offerings.

The bulge met increased offerings and selling became more active during the afternoon despite the easier turn in the dollar. Houses with western and Wall Street connections were among the more active sellers and stop orders were uncovered as prices broke into new low ground for the movement. Closing quotations were at or within a point or two of the lowest.

Exports today 28,701, marking 1,044,711 so far this season. Port receipts 36,439. U. S. port stocks 3,182,699.

The refined market was easier and all refiners announced a reduction of 10 points to the basis of 4.60 for fine granulated with some stating they would advance to 4.70 and 4.75 at the close tomorrow. Two of the out-of-town refiners reduced 10 points to 4.60 for today only, advancing at the close to 4.85.

Bank of France Loses More Gold From Hoard

Paris, Sept. 21 (AP).—The Bank of France has lost gold for the second successive week after having steadily added to its hoard for eleven weeks, a report showed today.

The statement set forth a decrease of 8,000,000 francs (currently $480,000) in the week ended September 15, and 2,000,000 francs ($120,000) in the previous week. The bank's gold stock is 82,250,000,000 francs ($4,935,000,000), which is 101 per cent coverage for circulation.

Packaged Coal Sold in Canada.

Montreal, Sept. 21 (U.P.).—"Packaged coal" has made its appearance here for the first time in the history of the industry. The coal is put in 100-pound bags at the mines. The size, weight and shipper's name are imprinted on each bag, which is sealed. In other words, this coal is sold exactly the same as any other trade-marked packaged commodity.

China Held Free To Sell U. S. Wheat

(Associated Press.)

Reports that China has offered to sell to Japan cotton purchased from the United States with a loan of $50,000,000 granted to the Chinese government by the reconstruction Finance Corporation last June created little surprise in Washington official circles.

It was stipulated in the loan agreement that $40,000,000 was to be used by China for the purchase of cotton in this country and $10,000,000 for the purchase of wheat. The cotton bought was China's property and no bar was placed upon resale. Consequently, the Chinese may put it in the hands of brokers and handle it as they please in the view of American officials.

The loan was authorized at the request of the Department of Agriculture to relieve the American market of surplus stocks.

Advent of Beer Brings Cows Brewers' Grains as New Food

Wooster, Ohio, Sept. 21 (AP).—The barnyard bill of fare has a new item for dairy cows now that beer is legal—and the dairy experts say it's quite all right.

A. E. Perkins, dairy chemist at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, declares that herd owners may forget about feeding their prize cows bran or oats, and give them the brewers' grains that are a by-product of the beer vats.

The malting process in beer-making takes most of the starch out of the barley and corn used, leaving a bulky product with a high crude fiber content and most of the protein, fat and mineral water.

Already brewers' grains have appeared on the market in wet form, and the supply will increase as soon as the beer concerns have an opportunity to install drying equipment, Perkins says.

To keep the cows contentedly chewing their cuds, the dairy chemist suggests, just add a dash of bone meal—about 1 per cent— to the grain mixture, bringing up the phosphorous content.

Pipeline Extension Started.

Omaha, Nebr., Sept. 21 (AP).—President Frank H. Brooks, of the Northern Natural Gas & Pipe Line Co., today announced that work had been started on an 18-inch gas pipeline extension from Owatonna, Minn., to Minneapolis at an approximate cost of $1,000,000. Nearly 1,000 men will be employed.

Bank Stocks Drop $50,225,000 in Week

New York, Sept. 21.—The New York City bank stock market was again slightly lower during the last week, with the result that the group on the average now yields about 5.66 per cent.

The aggregate value of the 16 leading issues, as compiled by Hoit, Rose & Troster, ended the week at $1,385,621,000, compared with $1,435,846,000 at the close of the previous week, a decrease of $50,225,000, or 3.5 per cent. The low point for the year to date, namely, $1,065,746,000, was recorded on April 5.

The current average yield of the 16 stocks of 5.66 per cent compares with a yield of 5.46 per cent reported on September 8. The current market value of the 16 stocks is now 1.06 times their known book value, against 1.09 on September 8. Based upon current figures, the 16 stocks are now quoted at an average of 10.2 times their known earnings, against 10.5 on September 8.

France Seeks Control Of Plane Line to Natal

Marseilles, Sept. 21 (U.P.).—There is one airline of the future that France would like to control at all costs; the direct line from Marseilles to Natal.

The Arc-en-Ciel proved the practicability of flying across the South Atlantic regularly. Navy Capt. Jean Bonnot now is completing preparations to tackle the job with a seaplane and hopes to take off from the Etang-de-Berre Airport near here as soon as the machine is properly tuned up.

Capt. Bonnot will be accompanied by Lieut. Robert Jean-Pierre, Pilot Gauthier, Radio Operator Emont and Mechanic Durithy. The ship is a Latecoere 300 with four Hispano 650-horsepower motors. The course probably will be along the coast of Spain, across Morocco to St. Louis and then to Natal.

Wheat Slumps To Limit Under Selling Drive

Speculative Holdings Sold in Lumps at Closing; All Grains Drop.

Chicago, Sept. 21 (AP).—Semidemoralization seized the grain markets late today, and wildfire selling to stop losses hurried prices down the extreme limit allowed in any 24 hours.

Speculative holdings of all cereals were thrown overboard wholesale in the last fifteen minutes, and final quotations on wheat and every other kind of grain were at the day's bottom level, wheat 7 cents off from Tuesday's high point.

Bewilderment of traders as to whether there would be inflation or not, with weakness of stocks, cotton and sterling, and a sharp reduction in the price of free gold, appeared to be chiefly responsible for the rush to let go of ownership of grain.

Wheat Closes Flat.

Wheat closed flat, 5 to 5⅛ cents under yesterday's finish; corn, 3⅝ to 4 cents down; oats, 3 to 3⅛ cents off, and provisions unchanged to 25 cents lower.

Lowest prices of the day for wheat were reached following moderate transient rallies after noon. Renewal of wheat weakness followed statements from Washington by Senator Lewis, of Illinois, that currency inflation would destroy industrial progress achieved under the NRA.

Further attention was also given to remarks ascribed to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace that devaluation of the dollar was no cure-all.

Downward Trend Persists.

From the outset, wheat and other grains showed an acute downward tendency most of the day. Special notice was taken of enlarged shipments of wheat from Russia and Argentina.

Only passing attention was given to authoritative estimates that the United States east of the Rockies has less than the usual amount of wheat considered a safe reserve to bridge over one crop season to another.

Black Sea shipments of wheat this week, including Russia's exports, totaled 2,376,000 bushels, against 952,000 a year ago, and Argentina shipped 1,837,000 bushels, compared with 1,245,000 at this time last year.

Corn and oats tumbled with wheat as a result of favorable weather throughout the corn belt. Primary receipts of corn were fairly large.

Total Activities In Cotton Set Highest Mark

New York, Sept. 21.—The total movement of American cotton into domestic consumption plus export was larger during August this year than in any other August in the history of the cotton trade, according to a report of the New York Cotton Exchange.

The movement aggregated 1,129,000 bales in August this year, compared with only 884,000 bales last year, and 660,000 two years ago. In only one other year, that being the World War year of 1917, has the movement of American cotton in August exceeded 1,000,000 bales.

Domestic consumption and exports both ran at an unusually high rate last August except one. The only exception was August, 1927, when the combination of a high level of general business activity and a long upward movement in cotton prices resulted in record-breaking forward orders for cotton goods and a record high cotton consumption. The export total of 540,000 bales last month has never been equalled in any previous August. Exports usually run light in August, since the new movement only just begins during that month.

Supply in Country.

The combination of a reduced domestic stock at the beginning of this season on August 1, the smaller size of the new crop, and the very heavy movement in August resulted in the total supply in this country on August 31 being far less than on the same date last year or the year before, according to the cotton exchange report.

The total domestic stock at the end of August, including the estimated unpicked portion of the crop, was 19,066,000 bales, compared with 21,452,00 on the corresponding date last year and 22,353,000 two years ago. The stock was thus 2,386,000 bales smaller than last year, and 3,287,000 less than two years ago.

These statistics indicate that the excess in the supply of cotton in this country over and above the normal or average supply has been reduced by about 60 per cent. In the five years prior to the world trade depression, the average end-August stock of cotton in this country was approximately 17,000,000 bales. Acordingly, the stock of 22,353,000 bales at the end of August two years ago represented an excess supply of about 5,300,000 bales. This excess has now been reduced to about 2,100,000 bales. The Government is moving aggressively to reduce production next year with a view to eliminating the surplus entirely.

Decline Since June.

Domestic consumption of cotton has declined appreciably since June and July, but some reaction was expected from the phenomenally high rate of operations early in the summer.

Part of the decrease has been due to most mills having reduced their operations to a five-day week basis under the NRA code. But even with this reduction mill activity is on a much higher level than a year ago, and large sales of cloth this past week suggest that mill activity will be maintained on a high basis.

Exports during the first week in this month were about the same as in the same week last year, but during last week they again ran well ahead of last year. The total export movement in the first two weeks this month was 338,000 bales, compared with 297,000 in the same weeks last year and 209,000 two years ago. Total exports during the season to date are 876,000 bales, as against 786,000 last season, and 491,000 two seasons ago.

Survey Shows Why Families Borrow Money

Chicago, Sept. 21.—The principal social and economic causes that compelled American wage-earning families to borrow money are shown in a survey, the first of its kind, made public by Burr Blackburn, research director of Household Finance Corporation, here today. The survey analyzed conditions which caused 135,815 families in 91 cities to obtain loans from the company the first seven months of this year, and refuted the idea that a majority borrow because of financial jams resulting from avoidable extravagance or careless money management.

Family financial responsibility and sound management comparable to commercial practices are reflected by the analysis, Blackburn said. The borrowers were a representative cross-section of wage earners, their incomes ranging from less than $1,000 to about $5,000 per year and averaging $158 per month.

More than 80 per cent borrowed for purposes classed as constructive or to meet emergencies arising from unpreventable accidents and other conditions not wholly their own individual making. Only 7.7 per cent obtained loans to recoup from an evident failure to keep ordinary expenses within their incomes. Owing to reduced wage scales of the past two years only part of these, Blackburn said, could be classed as extravagant. The loan, together with the company's budget and economic advisory service, are calculated to restore these families to reasonable stability.

"The vast majority of American families have greatly improved management of their financial affairs," Blackburn said. "Fewer go on 'spending sprees' and more are budgeting and operating their expenses in a business-like way to meet current revenues. Homes wherein the wives have charge of management, including buying, keeping the checkbook or pay envelope and paying bills, get into financial difficulties less frequently."

Fox Theater Celebrates Sixth Anniversary—Truce in Opera War—New Bookings

Birthday Bill Presents Many Fine Features

Six years ago this week F street was practically agog—and in addition to being the Capital's principal motion-picture thoroughfare, too!

The two circumstances, however, were closely related. It was six years ago this week that the Fox Theater added its ornate beauty to Washington's gathering places for the lovers of light, laughter, music and gayety.

The inaugural program was devised and personally presented by no less a master of stagecraft, lighting effects, musical wizardry and ballyhoo than our old friend Samuel Lionel Rothafel—"Roxy," to youse esthetes—who had brought down from Broadway a mixed chorus of some 100 or so voices, to do 4 minutes of singing in a spectacular stage presentation at an average cost of $40 per voice; had whipped the 50-piece symphony orchestra into a flamboyant and moderately smooth source of a concord of sweet sound and otherwise had cast an aura of distinction about the dedicatory exercises that sounded a new note in hurrah, hokum and hoop-de-doo.

The Fox was the talk of the town.

As time wore on, it became apparent that being the talk of the town was an expensive luxury for the Fox. Its stage and screen presentations were not productive of their cost at the box office. The house for a considerable time may be said to have languished in a crimson deluge on the ledgers.

Has Made Great Strides.

Under the Loew management it has forged steadily ahead until today, upon the sixth anniversary of its birth, so to speak, it stands an imposing and a profitable monument to perseverance, perspicacity in management and showmanship.

Six years old, Loew's Fox is going great guns, with programs which keep the largest seating capacity in the National Capital comfortably filled if not actually packed to overflowing at every performance.

For this birthday week—it begins today on the theater's booking sheets—City Manager Carter Barron and his executive associates have arranged a bill that will compare rather more than favorably with the finest the Fox has ever housed.

Scrupulous care has been exercised not alone in the choice of the screen feature for the week, but on the stage the presence of the Boswell Sisters, most popular of the vocalizing close-harmonists, may be accepted as an earnest of the management's eagerness to provide a quality of entertainment well above the week-in-and-week-out average of any playhouse operating on the combination policy of pictures and vaudeville.

Special Overture.

In further observance of this gala occasion, Phil Lampkin, the fork-handed baton swisher presiding over the destinies of the present "Fox Concert Orchestra," has arranged a special overture number which will embrace in its considerable medley a majority of the hit tunes that have reigned in popular fancy during the six years that the Fox has been open.

Altogether, a pretentious and promising program that will signalize the Fox's close approach to the goal it set itself six short years ago, if not quite its attainment.

Congratulations—both to the Fox and to Washington—for a half-dozen years well expended in the direction of worthy pastiming.

But those six years, perhaps, haven't been so short, at that.

Opening tonight for the fall season, with a new orchestra, new decorations and a new policy in entertainment, the Club Michel, No. 1 Thomas Circle, will once more take its place among Washington's representative nocturnal rendezvous. Completely done over in the matter of decor, with a handsome new marble entrance foyer, the Club Michel this season will be found typical of the swankier of the night clubs popular in New York. To start the season with a truly grandiose gesture, Walter von Herbulis, the club's genial entrepreneur, has arranged a variety of entertainment and divertissements that will strike a new note in afterdark skylarking.

High Expectations.

Returning today from a two-day booking conference in New York, General Manager John J. Payette, of the Warner interests in this territory, brings back word of notable attractions to be presented at the Earle and Metropolitan Theaters in immediately impending weeks.

In conjunction with the week of personal appearances of Barbara Stanwyck at the Earle, beginning Friday, September 29, "The Secret of the Blue Room" will be the screen feature. This is described as a more intriguing mystery story than either "The Mystery of the Wax Museum" or "Doctor X."

Following this will come "Wild Boys of the Road," Warner Brothers' timely picture of modern neglected youth; "Brief Moments," Columbia's picturization of the stage play of the same name by S. N. Behrman, in which Francine Larrimore and Alexander Woolcott appeared at the Belasco Theater a few seasons ago, with Carole Lombard, Monroe Owsley and Donald Cook in the principal roles; Paramount's "Golden Harvest," with Richard Arlen, Chester Morris, Genevieve Tobin and Roscoe Ates, who has not been much in evidence with his stammering of late, and Barbara Stanwyck's latest Warner vehicle, "Forever in My Heart."

For November.

The month of November will bring S. S. Van Dine's "The Kennell Murder Case," with William Powell returning to the role of Philo Vance; Ruth Chatterton in "Female;" "College Coach," a football story; Kay Francis in "The House on 56th Street," and Paul Muni in "The World Changes."

In the wake of "To Much Harmony" at the Metropolitan, are listed Maurice Chevalier in "The Way to Love;" Warners' "Footlight Parade," with an imposing roster of stars, and other titles to be revealed when the bookings have been definitely set.

The announcement that Nance O'Neill, one of the most distinguished stars of the American stage, would be the guest-artist for next week's production of the late Edgar Wallace's "Criminal at Large," last of the preliminary season of revivals at the National, has caused a rash of ticket buyers to the E street box-office to take advantage of an attraction of this caliber at the low price scale Manager Cochran has kept rigorously in force. A genuine amusement bargain, this.

War Is Over.

A silent, but relentless, opera war has been raging in the Capital for the past three weeks, unbeknown to the public.

Two organizations, the Metropolitan Civic Opera Company, headed by Miss Maria Verdi, of Washington, and the International Opera Company, of Maurice Frank, of New York, have been striving vigorously to capture the favor of local opera fans.

The performances of the two companies were scheduled for two consecutive Sundays, September 24 and October 1. This unusual operatic race had begun to spread confusion among the public.

In modified degree, it was reminding of the famous rivalry between the Metropolitan Opera Company and Oscar Hammerstein's organization at the Manhattan Opera House, in New York years ago.

Yields Field.

At the instance of leading art patrons and some influential political personages in New York and Washington, Maurice Frank, manager of the International Opera Company, reluctantly agreed to yield the field to Washington's first lady impresario, Miss Verdi, and to cancel his performance on October 1.

In order to avoid confusion and lessen the disappointment of those who have made arrangements to be present at the performance of the International Opera Company, Miss Verdi consented to postpone the performance of "La Forza Del Destino" from Sunday, September 24, to the following Sunday, October 1. Tickets bought for either performance will be honored on the later date, or will be exchanged.

Ethel Pastor, featured soprano with Phil Spitalny and his Golden Rod Orchestra at the Earle for a second week, beginning today, has been signed for a starring part with the forthcoming edition of the "Ziegfeld Follies," according to word received yesterday from the Shubert offices in New York, producers of the revue in conjunction with Billie Burke, widow of the late Flo Ziegfeld. Miss Pastor, who is under the exclusive management of Spitalny, was discovered by the band leader when she was singing in a Gypsy cafe in New York six months ago. Since that time she has been featured with the orchestra both in the theater and on the air.

It felt a little more like it yesterday, but the man with the roasted chestnuts hasn't showed up on the street corners yet, so it probably won't freeze the ferns if you leave them out again tonight!

Inaugurate Night Club Season

RKO-Keith's

"LADY FOR A DAY." Columbia Pictures' dramatization of the short story, "Madam La Guimpe," by Damon Runyon, adapted to the screen by Robert Riskin, featuring May Robson, Warren William, Guy Kibbee, Glenda Farrell, Ned Sparks, Jean Parker and Walter Connolly, with Nat Pendleton, Hobart Bosworth, Halliwell Hobbes, Barry Norton and Robert Emmett O'Connor. Directed by Frank Capra. Previewed Saturday morning, September 16.

Characterized by a crass sort of Times Square humor, punctuated with expletives that seldom seep into the politer drawing-rooms and peopled with as bizarre a lot of big-town citizenry as ever pineapplied a night spot or tapped a race-track wire, this typically urban recital of a series of Arabian Nights adventures in the life of a curbstone apple woman still exerts a genuine tug at the heartstrings and supplies an uninterrupted flow of soundly human qualities that place it safely on the side of sure-fire audience entertainment.

Since the titular and motivating development of the story has been reenacted locally for the edification of the press and the brief exaltation of our own Apple Annie, it is perhaps not necessary to go further into that ramification of a plot that elevates a street vendor from the squalor of the gutter and the tenements to the opulence of New York's most sumptuous hotel in order that her convent-bred daughter may not be apprised that her mother's social eminence has all been a lifelong sham. In brief summary, the story sounds thoroughly implausible and as incredible as any of Herr Grimm's fanciful creations.

Pitched in High Key.

In essence this is true, but so shrewdly has the whole fabulous business been contrived, so deftly is it played and so rapid-fire and explosive are its verbal barrages that all thoughts of the rigid demands of logic and believability are swept away by the gusto with which a pitiful old lady is rescued from an ominous situation by a band of kindly crooks.

"Lady for a Day" is a film play pitched in a high key, played in the tense tempo characteristic of the underworld's most impulsive enterprises and highly colored with touches of farce comedy and romantic melodrama.

Principal interest among the characters of the story centers in the title role of Apple Annie, played with the intelligent restraint of an experienmed and veteran artiste by May Robson. Her transition from the tatterdemalion old harridan of the city streets, through the hands of the hairdressers, beauticians, modistes and masseurs to the poised and graceful chatelaine of a gorgeous establishment in New York's smartest and most exclusive hotel is one of those startlingly effective bits of histrionic legerdemain that cause lumps to come up in throats and handkerchiefs to flick at moist eyes.

There is an emotional quality in all of the climacteric episodes of this picture that is as irresistible as it is difficult to define.

Able Supporting Cast.

In addition to Miss Robson's splendid impersonation, others of comparable worth are contributed by Warren William, as The Dude, one of Broadway's "big shots"; Guy Kibbee, the pool shark impressed into service as a polished Judge Blake; Ned Sparks, Happy, The Dude's chief lieutenant, and Walter Connolly, who deserves a more meaty role than he has in the Spanish grandee come to America to marry his son to the daughter of a supposed leader of society.

Figures of less consequence are impersonated by Jean Parker, as the daughter of the masquerading apple woman; Glenda Farrell, The Dude's chief source of worry; Nat Pendleton, a tough and very dumb egg; Hobart Bosworth, Halliwell Hobbes, Robert Emmett O'Connor and scores more. All competent and all, at one time or another, contagiously amusing.

It is augmented by an interesting short reel devoted to fishing, a cartoon comedy, the Pathe News and a stage diversion presented by Arthur Godfrey & Co., as the final gesture in a recent promotional contest.

Cronin Eludes Mob of Women in Chase After Nats Clinch Pennant

This Morning

THE KID makes good.

Even Old Man Mathematical Certainty, always the last to concede in such matters, now has buckled before the overwhelming evidence in favor of Joseph Edward Cronin, the young man from San Francisco, who has answered his critics with a smashing success in his first managerial effort.

They said he was too young; that Clark Griffith was ruining a great shortstop when he saddled him with managerial responsibilities; that the Yankees could not be beaten.

And Joseph Edward Cronin replied by taking the bit in his teeth, flashing the fire in his eye, by taking in regular stride his managerial duties, by playing the best ball of his career, by imparting his own dash to his men, by beating down all opposition and by bringing to Washington its third American League pennant.

Sleeps, Eats Baseball.

What manner of youth is this Cronin, who stepped out of the ranks first to mold and then to lead his ball club into the pennant?

That's Cronin. He can recite to you the deeds of old Hoss Radbourne, eccentricities of Rube Waddell and Bugs Raymond. He likes to think that that protruding, fighting jaw that adorns his fighting countenance is Ty Cobb's fighting jaw. He knows the legend of "The Stone Face on the Mountain," and he wants to look, and act, like a big leaguer.

Belongs to Cronin.

And Washington's pennant triumph belongs to Cronin. It was he who conceived the pennant-winning line-up. It was he who astounded the baseball trading mart last winter with his wholesale deals that brought to Washington the men with whom he thought he could win, and cut adrift the men who could be spared.

Whitehill, Stewart, Schulte, Sewell, they were the powerful quartet that Cronin with rare trading acumen brought to the Nats last winter, the men with whom he promised Clark Griffith he could win the pennant, and no joking.

That's what he told his ball team down South in Biloxi in the spring. That they could win the pennant. And he told them again in that first week of the season when they slumped to fifth place under a series of discouraging setbacks.

Discouraging Setbacks.

And Cronin never mentioned pennant to his ball club again until that fateful day on August 7, in Yankee Stadium, the camp of the enemy, where their three-game lead had been whittled to one game following the loss of a double-header. That was the day he touched their innards.

That day he proved himself the master psychologist, though he probably couldn't define the word. He timed his only pregame speech to the minute. He appealed to his players' sense of loyalty, to their courage, sent them out of the locker room vowing vengeance on the Yanks. He had reminded them that this was his first mention of pennant since the season started. And they went out and restored that three-game lead.

Steadying Influence.

Each test, Cronin met with his men. He was the steadying influence in the infield, a power with the bat. In one game at Boston he used six pitchers to bring home a 4-3 victory. He fired them with spirit especially against the Yankees and they won seven of the first eight games against their only serious rival.

The Nats' perennial weakness on the road Cronin cured with his magical touch and in the final analysis it was in the West, the graveyard of Washington's pennant hopes in other seasons, that Cronin planted the pennant seed. The kid is clever.

8 Yale Gridmen, Coach Taken Ill

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 21 (U.P.).—Eight members of Yale's varsity football squad and Line Coach Adams Walsh were stricken with a stomach ailment tonight, the eight players being sent to New Haven Hospital. Coach Walsh, former Notre Dame star, was ill at his home.

The players have been eating at the new training table, but it was not announced whether the ailment could be traced to that source.

Washington Clinches 3d Pennant

Manush streaked across the outfield terrain, losing his cap in the chase that seemed hopeless. And then the paths of the ball and Manush started to converge. One last stride, one last lunge, and Manush's glove shot into the air to be greeted with the thud of the ball that was sweet music to his ears. The pennant belonged to the Nats.

Stewart Effective.

Joe Cronin, on the threshold of a successful season, had given unto Walter Stewart the task of stopping the Browns and pitching the Nats to that final victory. And he placed it in accomplished hands, for Stewart outpitched the talented Irving Hadley in a mound duel that saw the Browns make only seven hits. Hadley held the Nats to six hits, but these the Nats bunched judiciously.

Relentlessly, the Nats went at the Browns yesterday to insure that final victory with four scintillating double plays that cut the opposition down in the best approved manner of the Washington Club, whose inner defense all season has throttled the batting efforts of the enemy.

It was a double play in the ninth that mowed down the Browns before Manush applied the finishing touches with a flourish; when the Browns' first batter, Carl Reynolds, a reformed Nat, had opened the inning with a single to put the tying run on base.

Then Buddy Myer sped in to scoop up Campbell's scorching grounder with a sure-handed effort and fling it to Joe Cronin at second base for the launching of a double play that the Nats' manager completed with a toss to Kuhel.

Early One-Run Lead.

Another destructive double-play delivered the Nats in the seventh inning after the Browns had tied the score following a walk to Campbell and the irrepressible Melillo's fly-ball double to center. Cronin took Gullic's grounder and cut Melillo down at third base, and then after Shea had singled to put the winning run on, Cronin took Levey's grounder and launched the Nats' third twin-killing.

The game went balmy in the Nats' seventh when they partook of much heedless and headless base running, but finally wound up with the winning run. Kuhel had singled and Boken had walked when Sewell delivered a double into center field.

Boken dashed to third base, but Kuhel, thinking the ball would be caught, held the base, and then with both trapped, the runners started running in assorted directions until Kuhel finally conceded third base to Boken and started for home. He made it with the pennant-winning run.

Fans Threaten Zaharias as He Wins

MORE workers and shorter hours for the same money, in strict acordance with the NRA code, was in vogue at Griffith Stadium last night, although most of the rasslers do not know what the recovery act is all about. It was just a happen-so and maybe the cold weather had something to do with it, but the fact remains that an extra bout was added, the longest any two toiled was 23½ minutes, while three pairs did their stuff and hurried home after performing 8 minutes, or less, each.

Does Little Harm.

Against Zaharias, McMillan put up a good battle while he lasted. He connected with several flying tackles and was much surprised to see that they did his foe little harm. With his most effective weapon ineffective, there was little hope of gaining the verdict. Zaharias' knee was working to perfection and it was a thrust into McMillan's stomach which knocked all of the competition out of him and allowed the big Greek to follow through with a body slam for the verdict in 22 minutes.

The bout was rough, with Zaharias the chief offender. One bottle was thrown in the ring and the police had to escort the Greek to the dressing room.

In the cofeature bout, Sol Slagel's double-jointedness and contortionistic ability did him little good and he bowed to Gino Garibaldi, the rough Italian from New York.

The preliminary boys evidently figured that the featured players were getting the money, so it was not up to them to put in the most time. Cliff (Swede) Olsen threw Ivan Vakturoff in 16 minutes; Paul Boesch tossed Jim Englin in 7; Doc Karl Sarpolis pinned Herbie Freeman in 6½, and Wladek Zbyszko earned the verdict over Milo Steinborn in 8 minutes.

Manush's Catch

He was adjusting his sun glasses when Walter Stewart started to pitch to Melillo. He waved frantically to hold up the game. Manager Cronin spied his gestures and shouted to Stewart, but it was too late.

Melillo's long fly soared out into left center. Manush streaked across the outfield without benefit of any shield from the sun—and made the catch with the glasses dangling in his throwing hand.

Schmeling, Levinsky Are Sought for Bout

Chicago, Sept. 21 (U.P.).—Promoter Sammy Wolff announced today he had opened negotiations for Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion, to meet King Levinsky, conqueror of Jack Sharkey, in a bout here in November or December.

Giants Cheered By Throngs In Drizzle

Terry So Excited That He Talks Into Wrong End of Microphone.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (AP).—Sedately, as befits the dignity of government, but with all the steaming enthusiasm of the bleacher boys, New York formally hailed Bill Terry's Giants today as the new champions of the National League.

Thousands stood and yelled in a drizzle of rain in the City Hall Plaza as Mayor John O'Brien, boasting that he once had managed the Georgetown University nine, read his eulogy from the City Hall steps and sniped slyly at the sports writers who had predicted the Giants couldn't do it.

John McGraw Speaks.

John McGraw, who brought New York's last National League flag back to town in 1924, spoke briefly and self-consciously, looking and apparently feeling regretfully like a figure apart from it all. John Heydler, president of the league, made a speech. Bill Terry, mild appearing in business clothes, introduced his equally inoffensive looking teammates in their everyday suits.

The bands of the police and fire departments blared their mightiest. The crowds roared, but they set not a single hand on the athletes. Hundreds of uniformed police, forming a human barrier, saw to that.

"This is the happiest moment of my life," said Terry, as he blushed in the din of the bands and the cheers and addressed the wrong end of the microphone of the loud speaker system.

Mates Introduced.

Then, one by one, he brought his teammates down the steps, Travis Jackson, Frank O'Doul, Freddy Fitzsimmons, Joe Moore, Jack ("They can't beat us") Ryan, Hal Schumacher, Mel Ott, Hughie Critz, Gus Mancuso, Roy Parmelee, Adolfo Luque, Herman Bell, George Davis, and finally a weak and wan looking Johnny Vergez, third baseman just out of a hospital after an appendicitis operation.

Mayor O'Brien expressed "the pride of 7,000,000 people" in the achievement of the Giants, accomplished in the face of great odds.

Boy Manager Besieged in Clubhouse

Wild Celebration Marks Clubhouse Scene After Final Victory.

BESIEGED in the clubhouse by a hero-worshipping throng of thousands of fans of both sexes gone mildly mad by the Nats' conquest of the American League pennant, Manager Joe Cronin led a wild chase over the ball park grounds to escape to safety through a trap door in the center field fence in a comic-opera sequel to the ball game.

For a full hour the Ladies Day customers milled about the clubhouse entrance waiting for Cronin and his men to hove into view after the locker-room celebration inside.

Forewarned of the crowds outside, Cronin dashed up the steps to the dugout and onto the playing field, where he was espied by the rear guard of the women who could not get close to the clubhouse. In full cry they started after him, followed closely by the throng who had been waiting in vain at the exit.

Cronin Takes to Heels.

Then ensued the weirdest hare-and-hound fan-ball player chase ever witnessed. At first ambling casually toward the center field exit, Cronin sighted his pursuers and broke into a full run. He attempted to make his way into the stands, found his path cut off, and then dashed full tilt for a door in the right field fence. It led to nowhere and Cronin was trapped.

He ventured out again, and this time had to hustle his way through the shrieking women, got clear, and dashed for a door in deep center field. He made it and found his car waiting for him on Fifth street.

In the clubhouse after the players dashed from the field, they had given vent to their own pent-up emotions collected through the strain of the waning days of the pennant race when the flag, always within their reach, had been discouragingly eluding them.

Cronin dashed into the locker rooms to be grasped by Owner Clark Griffith and have his hand pumped for a full five minutes while his players slapped him on the back.

Sheriff Dave Harris picked up Cronin's 190 pounds and carried him about the locker room on his shoulders while the boy manager beamed his broad Celtic smile on all in attendance and tried furiously to get his feet on the ground.

Congratulates His Players.

One by one, Cronin made the rounds and congratulated his ball players individually. Walter Stewart, General Crowder, Earl Whitehill, Luke Sewell, Buddy Myer, Bluege, Kuhel and the others he greeted in turn.

The sound comeramen grabbed him from his men and seated him on a handy trunk with Mr. Griffith while the flashlights of the still photographers boomed and the sweat from the Klieg lights stood out on the faces of manager and owner in dripping beads.

There on the trunk, Griffith and Cronin conducted a mutual admiration society for the benefit of the newsreels as Griffith praised Cronin and Cronin praised Griffith, praised his ball players, praised Trainer Mike Martin, and praised the spirit of Washington fans.

Over in another corner, the radio men were broadcasting the goings-on, and presently Cronin was dragged to the mike to tell again his appreciation of his ballplayers "who made it easy for any manager."

Winner Pulls Away in Stretch

Meade Scores Triple on Quickly, Primute and Tuffy G.

Toytime Pays $26.20 in Capturing Opener, for 2-Year-Olds.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

HAVRE DE GRACE RACE TRACK, Sept. 21.—The largest crowd of the meeting, estimated at 10,000, saw Adolphe Pons' Discovery sprint to victory in the Tulap Hill, the day's feature race. Discovery was no secret, and, as the betting progressed, it appeared that old Christopher Columbo himself was playing the hunch. The odds dropped to below par, and Discovery ran as if a peanut on a dollar would have been a good investment.

True that Prince Pompey was first to show in front as the field left the starting machine, but Johnny Gilbert soon moved Discovery hot on the trail of the leader. When the real running began, at the turn into the stretch, the son of Display glided out into the open. Meade set a new high for horse whipping on Prince Pompey, but, as far as the main end of the purse was concerned, he received only the exercise. Workman and Collateral puffed their way into third money.

Two and Half Lengths.

Discovery's margin went down in the books as one of two-and-one-half lengths, because Gilbert decided not to make it more. The all-important mutuel was $3.60.

Kate Wins Second.

A field of 11 went to the post in the second race, but as far as the real end of the action was concerned, there were three horses on the track. Kate turned up the winner after a struggle with March Step. The Gen was always third. Merritt rode the winner, which paid $7.40.

Quickly, a daughter of Haste, had all her speed today, and Meade knew how to make full use thereof. He sent the filly away on top and she stayed there by various margins to lead Renaissance and Happy Anne to the finish line. The $12.80 mutuel was disappointing to many who played her at longer odds earlier in the betting.

Even Up Makes Spurt.

Even Up trailed his field in the fifth until the stretch turn and then put on a burst of speed that made it no contest. Haines did the jockeying. Below Cost and Pompoleon were closest.

Meade rode his second winner of the day on Primute in the sixth and went back to his old longshot tricks. The filly ran Golden Princess into the ground and then stuck to her guns to stall off the stretch drives of Souer Blanche and Kindacorn. The winner paid $37.60.

Tuffy G came from far back to take the final.

Dear Al: Havre de Grace Race Track.

Well, friend, I managed to squeeze two winners out of the card and at fair prices. Kate and Even Up were those loyal to the Bennings interest. However, we'll have to do better than that. They tell me there's a cold winter ahead. An epidemic of persons leaving their auto engines running has developed at this track. With the meeting only four days old, the announcement has come over the loud speaker eight times that such and such a licensed car "has the motor running. Getting very hot." Banderlog has finally left the C. V. Whitney barn by the claiming route. Ate many a ton of oats there and earned every dram of it. BILL.

First race—Bronsed, from the Coe Stable, barely missed getting out of the maiden class at Saratoga and was shipped here in good form. Certainly figures to take care of this field. Red Badge was away slowly in that opening-day test. Can do better. Dawnchild looks like a runner.

Second race—The Labrot entry, with three named, appears to have a lock on this purse. Toytime hardly will be sent back after yesterday's winning effort. However, In Clover appears good enough. Landsman for the show.

Third race—Ladino won here on a fast course last fall. Has been ducking out of fields since opening day. Ready to run and will be hard to beat. Hillsborough has a certain amount of class. Might prefer a longer route. Little Wing third.

Fourth race—Aegis had to put out everything he had to win here the other day, but is far too fit a horse to leave off the top of this crew. Chief's Troubadour won at this course and is the one to beat. Did She comes from a courageous line.

Fifth race—Springsteel's sprint here stamps him as ready to step down at this distance. Snapback will be there at the finish if the top one makes mistakes. Clothe, the unreliable, for the show.

Sixth race—Madges Fellow and Don Meade may prove the winning combination in this. Ran a good race after coming up from the half-milers. Can improve on it. Fluffy Lee has her speed and is not as heavily opposed as she was the other day. Prince Abbett to show.

Seventh race—Captive is the Bennings longshot special. Oiled and greased and ready to make the boys hang their mouths open today. Tuffy G. and Come On for the rest.

TOYTIME, breaking swiftly and sent into a brief lead, met stout contention in the early stages and, holding on stoutly during the stretch drive, just lasted to stall off WILLOW KING. Latter, awkward in reaching his best strides, worked his way up on the outside and came with a rush during the last furlong. LITTLE WOMAN, strongly ridden and saving ground, came with good courage in the final issue.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KATE, $7.40, $4.20, $3.20; MARCH STEP, $6.00, $4.20; THE GEN, $4.80.

KATE, rated in near attendance of MARCH STEP and going well in hand, went to the front when ready at the stretch turn and, mildly shaken up during the final furlong, came out at her leisure. MARCH STEP, hurried into the lead and saving ground, was unable to stay with the winner when challenged. THE GEN, hard ridden to hold a forward position, continued gamely, but was no match for the first two.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—QUICKLY, $12.80, $6.60, $4.00; RENAISSANCE, $8.00, $3.80; HAPPY ANNE, $3.60.

QUICKLY, moving into command with nice speed soon after the start, went along under slight restraint until challenged, responded stoutly and came out again in the closing furlong. RENAISSANCE, in the thick of contention all during the contest, held on courageously to outstay HAPPY ANNE. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DISCOVERY, $3.60, $2.80, $2.20; PRINCE POMPEY, $5.60, $3.40; COLLATERAL, $2.60.

DISCOVERY, kept close to PRINCE POMPEY in the first half mile and forcing a steady pace, wore the pacemaker down under pressure and was hurried along to the end to come away nicely. PRINCE POMPEY, having the most speed and hustled along from the start, was unable to keep pace when challenged. COLLATERAL was strongly handled all the way, but could not threaten the first two.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—EVEN UP, $7.80, $3.80, $2.80; BELOW COST, $9.00, $5.20; POMPOLEON, $3.80.

EVEN UP, outpaced for the first six furlongs and trailing his field while saving ground, swung to the outside midway of the final turn and, closing fast, wore BELOW COST down to win going away. BELOW COST had a lot taken out of him racing with GENERAL LEJEUNE and was unable to withstand the winner after gaining command. POMPOLEON, kept under strong pressure all the way, closed with good energy. GENERAL LEJEUNE had a lot taken out of him setting the pace.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good (from gate). Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:00. Off at 5:02. Winner, F. A. Carreaud's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PRIMUTE, $37.60, $19.40, $9.00; SOUER BLANCHE, $4.80, $3.60; KINDACORN, $7.00.

PRIMUTE, sprinting into an easy lead at once, was rated along until challenged, and shaken up stoutly after reaching the home stretch was hard urged to stall off SOUER BLANCHE. Latter, in tight quarters all during the back stretch, swung to the outside at the final turn and closed full of run when clear. KINDACORN, weaving his way between horses to reach a forward position, weakened after making a strong effort entering the main stretch.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good (from gate). Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:30. Off at 5:34. Winner, J. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TUFFY G, $7.40, $4.00, $2.40; BACKGAMMON, $4.40, $2.40; BUB McFARLAND, $2.20.

TUFFY G, restrained off the early pace, worked his way up on the outside when reaching contention, came with excellent speed and wore BACKGAMMON down in the closing furlong. Latter disposed of BOKIE B when ready, saved ground thereafter, but could not stall off the winner. BUB McFARLAND, badly blocked by DOORKEEPER and GABBO at the first turn, went to the outside when making his effort, but was not good enough.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

Calculating machines as we commonly know them are fairly recent inventions, but strange as it seems the Egyptians used a form of calculating machine at least 460 years B. C.—and the Chinese doubtlessly before that—known as the abacus. The present-day form of the abacus, a frame on which beads are strung on parallel wires, is looked upon by us as a child's toy, but to those who use it it is a valued machine.

Today it is used in some parts of China and Persia and even by Chinese in this country. Expert operators astound the Western observer by their quick computations on the abacus.

It takes almost one and a half volumes of material to make one volume of concrete when equal parts of cement, water and sand are mixed. Measured in terms of absolute volume, sand has about .65 of a cubic foot for every apparent cubic foot; cement has less than that.

Added together the cement fills the voids in the sand, and the water fills the voids in the cement. When sand, cement and water are mixed together in equal volumes (of course this ratio of materials is not used in actual construction) it takes 14 cubic feet of material to make 10 cubic feet of concrete.

Peacock and Sutherland Tie for Lead With 154's Each in District Amateur

Stars Leading Dettweiler By 2 Shots

TURNING in identical scores of 79-75 for a 154 total, Roger Peacock, of Indian Spring, defending titleholder, and Maj. Richard K. Sutherland, Army and Navy seige gun, forged into the van of a field of 12 contestants at the halfway mark of the 72-hole District golf championship yesterday at Indian Spring's course.

The youthful Dettweiler surprised his most ardent backers in the morning when he went out in 39 and came back in 38 to tie John R. Miller, of Beaver Dam, for the leadership.

With a blustery wind playing havoc with the golfers' shots, Dick Lunn, young Chevy Chase champion, managed to get around in 78—79, to hold to third place. He was one of four who break 160. Lunn started off like a house afire by holing out a 130-yard mashie niblick shot on the 400-yard first for an eagle deuce.

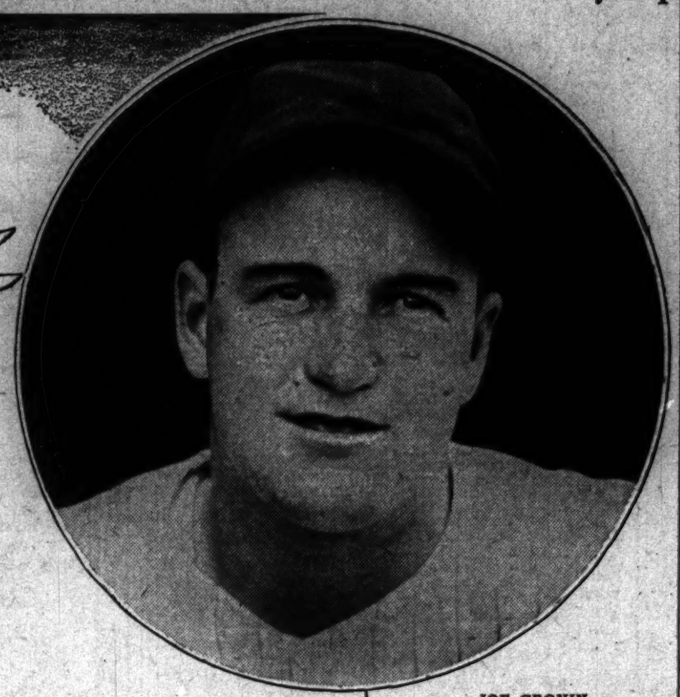
Nailing It Up—or Tacking It Down —By Jep



JOE CRONIN, in "The Kid Makes Good."

'You Didn't Foresee It, Either,' Pegler Replies to Mr. Terry

By Westbrook Pegler.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (Spl.).—It worries me a little to hear of Bill Terry's sarcastic twitter of the newspaper boys who guessed his Giants out of the National League competition last April because I am afraid Mr. Terry is one of the players I like. Yet in any bandying of nasty cracks between ballplayers, prize-fighters or what not on one side and the journalists on the other, I am strictly newspaper. So, if Mr. Terry wishes gratuitously to choose up sides and start something, I will have to apply for a suit and turn out as a candidate for a place on our team.

I never sympathized with the notion that a man covering baseball, prize-fighting or any other sport should qualify as a fortune-teller and regard the practice of guessing or experting as just a little harmless nonsense. Such guesses should not be binding on the guesser, and any gent who would go back to the files to dig out a wrong guess and gloat over the same is no gent.

Didn't Foresee Pennant.

He is even less a gent if he couldn't make any better guess himself, and in this case Bill Terry, though he was manager of the Giants, and though he is pretty well crowded with affrontery, hadn't quite enough affrontery to predict that his Giants would win a pennant when the season began last April. With all his brass, the manager of the New York Giants could only mumble that his athletes had a chance, and the highest peg that he could reach to hang his ambitions on for the season of 1933 was third place. Of course he had to say he had a chance because that is something which the management expects of every ballplayer, whether the athlete believes it himself or not.

If it is the duty of a journalist to predict how the dice will fall, then something is very wrong with the rates of pay. For obviously, when bookmakers are booking business on such a matter as a horse race, a pennant race or fight, the inkstained slave of the press coop could win himself out of servitude and into a life of Oriental luxury by the application of his foreknowledge, if he had such foreknowledge and a few shillings for an original investment. No newspaper expert would have to expert very long if his experting were not quite as fallible, and Bill Terry says it is, if not more so.

Invites Comparisons.

I often see frowsy parties hanging around the exteriors of the horse parks, offering exclusive selections, generally long shots, on the races then impending, and it has always puzzled me that, with such reliable foresight as they claimed to enjoy they could not afford tickets into the premises themselves.

Mr. Terry is a cold man and disinclined to woo the favor of the press. He is within his rights there, but in his rather biting allusions to $35-a-week reporters he invites comparisons. His own basic trade, therefore, is that of attendant at a gas station, and in a city where a man in receipt of $35 every week may drive up, honk his horn and yell out to such as Bill Terry, "Boy, put five in the tank and swab off the windshield and fill those tires, and there's a dime in it for you if you work fast."

I dislike to heave such reminders at the manager of a ball club which has just won the National League pennant, but I do not think a man who happens to find himself momentarily way up there ought to let the height go to his head. He will be coming down again to the gas station and there will still be $35-a-week reporters rattling around the National League and climbing the ramps to the press coops who can outknowledge him in all polite respects and outmanner him, too. And they will have seen much better ball players and baseball managers come and go, year after year, than sudden Bill Terry.

The only expert who picked his club to win last spring wound up in Richmond, Va., a few weeks after the season opened. So it goes, in the press coop, but so it goes on the ball field, too. Sergt. Gabby Street was a greater man than Terry a little while ago, but the sergeant is back in the high weeds of Missouri now, trying to remember the sound of the cheers, and there is no assurance that Bill Terry, within a couple of years, will be back at his gas pumps at the cross-roads down South.

The young man seems to be not quite major league in some respects. And if it is trouble he wants with the newspaper boys I am sure he need only write his ticket. There have been other champions who uttered the same challenge and thought themselves bright enough to outrepartee the working press, but learned to whine persecution before they got through.

Nats Will Take Series, Says Hornsby

AMONG those who hastened to congratulate Joe Cronin, the Nats' boy manager, on leading his charges to the American League pennant, was Rogers Hornsby, pilot of the Browns.

"Inasmuch as you clinched the flag at our expense," said Hornsby, "I kind of feel that we cut some figure in the race. I certainly hope that you beat the Giants out in the series, and believe that you will do so."

As Hornsby had been quoted here to the effect that he looked for the Giants to win, he was asked: "Why the sudden shift?"

"I'm not shifting," he replied. "I was misquoted. I said that I thought the Giants would give the Nats more of a battle than any other National League club could be counted upon to do. The fact is, I think the Nats will win, although I rate the two clubs so evenly that the breaks are liable to swing the balance.

"Both teams have a tight infield and are smart and fast. It is possible that the Giants' pitching staff is a little stronger, but to make up for this, I think Washington packs a little more stick power. It should be a great series and a close one—like that one of 1924, when clubs from the same cities met."

"But, get me straight," Hornsby said, as he headed for his taxi, "I'm for the Nats and wish 'em all the luck in the world."

Mrs. A. A. McEntee, Virginia Pope Win

Mrs. A. A. McEntee, medalist, and Virginia Pope, 18-year-old favorite, advanced to the semifinals of the Kenwood Country Club women's golf championship yesterday.

Mrs. McEntee defeated Mrs. H. E. Weber, 8 and 7, while Miss Pope turned back Mrs. Harvey Cooper, 3 and 2.

Walt Mason, Himself

Wasted Wisdom.

In the autumn of our days we are full of lore profound, and we lecture on the ways of the youngsters all around; we behold them as they waltz on the rosy path of youth, call attention to their faults, handing out large bales of truth. We have traveled many roads, known all good the years can bring, we have suffered all the goads that adversity can spring. We've committed many acts which were frivolous and vain; we have stored up countless facts which should make us safe and sane. We have seen the poor men rise from the gutter to the height; we have seen once wealthy guys with no place to roost at night. In the turmoil and the strife we have wended through the years; we have seen all sides of life, knowing laughter, knowing tears. If the youngsters would but pause, as they joyously proceed, we would fill their buoyant craws with advice they sorely need. We would teach them to avoid all the grievous gins and snares where the wanderer's destroyed, as he journeys, unawares. We would teach them how to dodge all that dread enchanted ground where the dire chimeras lodge, and the jabberwocks abound. But the youngsters will not stay for the counsel we could give; they must go their own sweet way, they, themselves, must learn to live.

New York.—Observations at the NRA parade: This cavalcade of trade and industries reveals some interesting professions . . . There goes what is left of the steeplejacks' union—only six men left in it now . . . Chinese laundrymen, too, have their contingent. Officials report that they are exceptionally conscientious about obeying the articles of their code.

The motion picture entries are brilliant with their troops of chorus girls . . . After walking 60 blocks in the sun, those dancing youngsters must find it difficult to perform in their shows that night . . . Two stilt walkers are in the procession, and may claim the honor of being the original NRA code idealists. They never work more than four hours daily.

The 10-hour procession makes it almost impossible to get from the east to the west side of town. About the only way is to take the Grand Central-Times Square subway shuttle . . . Paraders waiting for hours in the side streets in the Twenties employ the time in something of a Mardi Gras fiesta . . . There is singing and dancing, and beer gardens are doing a rushing business . . . Every block a block party.

Problem in Foods.

Al Smith has long voted for corn beef and cabbage, while another Al (Lunt) prefers eggs and bacon with chili tomato sauce. Joe Cook names beefsteak and onions, while Pierre Loving would put onions (raw) with caviar.

These are a few other dishes advanced for consideration: Fried chicken and cream gravy, apple pie with melted cheese, scrapple, Boston beans baked in sirup and bacon, roast pork and grits, South Carolina hominy waffles, Georgia chicken pie with dumplings and hard-boiled eggs, black-eyed peas with mustard greens.

Little "Home" Cooking.

The one hitch about New Yorkers' deciding "the great American dish" is that restaurants here rarely have the typical American recipes. In Manhattan you can get Indian curry Mexican tortillas, French crepes Suzette, Japanese suki-yaki, Ceylon rose leaf tea, Italian scalopine marsela, Spanish rice, Swedish pancakes, Hungarian goulash—but, nowhere in Manhattan have I been able to find hominy waffles or black-eyed peas.

London's two favorite prima donnas are Americans—Peggy Wood and Mary Ellis.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Several Kinds of Sleeping Sickness.

Over the telephone has just come a message from a young woman who told me of her case of sleeping sickness. She related her symptoms and told how she had been cured. In the course of her talk she said her case was similar to another now occupying space in the newspapers. She wanted a story in the paper about her case.

Sleeping sickness is not invariably fatal. It is far from being so, since somewhere near 80 per cent of those who have it escape with their lives. It is true that those who escape are often incapacitated for a long time, some are permanently changed in disposition and personality, and some have permanent physical disorders such as paralysis agitans. However, a fair proportion come out of sleeping sickness no worse for the experience they have had. Nevertheless, fear of the disease is widespread and we should have been glad to have printed this young woman's story for the effect on the popular fear, had her case been one of sleeping sickness.

There are two kinds of sleeping sickness and one other disorder that may resemble it. The name was preempted by a disease that prevails in central Africa. That sleeping sickness is a disease of man and animals, due to an infectious parasite and spread by the bite of a fly. Now that European nations have taken over suppression of the disease in their African colonies it appears to be coming under control. The French seem to be particularly successful in combating it. They use an arsenical preparation somewhat similar to that used in this country for the treatment of syphilis. Since the disease never reaches America there is no need to know how to diagnose it from the disorder we have.

The other kind of sleeping sickness is due to a virus or a microbe which gets into the body in some unknown way. The third disorder referred to is hysteria with the symptoms of sleeping sickness. That was the nature of the disorder of the woman who told me of her case over the telephone, and also of the other woman whose case is now being given space in the newspapers. The desire for attention, the wish to be noticed, talked about, and written about is responsible for this imitation sleeping sickness and the publicity given cases of the real disease is certain to cause some hysterics to attempt to simulate it.

Lockjaw.

A. H. writes: What is the cause of lockjaw? Is it more dangerous if the wound is inflicted by a rusty nail? Can an infection take place in any part of the body? Is it curable?

Reply.

Lockjaw results from infection with the tetanus bacillus. Wounds made by rusty nails are dangerous. The disease results from wounds in any and all parts of the body. Some cases are cured. Many are not. It is preventable.

Saturday, October 21—Courts at Metropolitan Baptist Church.

The September emphasis is being placed largely on getting all troops hitting on all sixes, with a program and schedule of interesting activities for the fall. Troops are beginning to study the provisions of the President Roosevelt award. Many divisions have already scheduled their monthly round tables. The Twelfth (Redskin) Division held its round table on Tuesday. Fairfax County Scouts will hold their round table on Tuesday evening, September 26, when Walter MacPeek, educational director of the District of Columbia Council, will discuss "Planning the Troop Program."

October looms as a busy month, with courts of review and courts of honor scheduled on the regular basis; the awarding court scheduled for October 14; the regional conference to be held in Baltimore on October 6 and 7; training courses to start during the month, and a scoutmasters' rally scheduled for Tuesday evening, October 3.

Nut Gathering and Tree Planting.

One Boy Scout troop, in Washington, Troop 52, conducted by All Souls Episcopal Church, Chevy Chase, gathered 42 bushels of walnuts last year. A thousand bushels of walnuts were gathered by Scouts in the vicinity of Gettysburg, Pa.

Very likely this is the largest quantity of walnuts ever collected in one locality and brought together at one time, although it represents only one-half of the total gathered during the past nutting season under the direction of the National Nut Tree Planting Council.

Through the efforts of the sponsors of the nation-wide nut tree-planting program, more than 1,000,000 seeds have been gathered.

Boy Scout troops in sections of the country, where nut trees flourish, fell to with a will and have secured the seeds that will provide the way for perpetuating America's great heritage. Boys of the York-Adams County Area in Pennsylvania outdid their record of 1931 in gathering seeds from the laden trees at Gettysburg to supply with walnut trees, farms, public parks, scout camps and school yards of the United States.

They are rivaled by the Shenandoah Area Scouts, whose records are not yet complete, but who turned over to the National Nut Tree Planting Council in December nearly 500 bushels. Because of the favorable weather the boys in that locality are still gathering and shipping in nuts.

Instruction in Life Saving.

Scouts who desire instructions in swimming and life saving are invited to report each Monday and Wednesday at 5:45 p. m. at the boys' department, Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. is providing the use of the pool.

To Attend Regional Meeting.

A large delegation of Washington Scouters will journey to Baltimore to participate in the annual meeting of Region 7, to be held on October 6 and 7. Various topics of council administration will be discussed, such as finance, court of honor, sea scouting, training, rural scouting and other very important phases of scouting growth and administration. Detailed programs of the two day' sessions are available at Scout headquarters.

Courts of review and courts of honor will be held during the coming months at regular intervals, as follows:

Wednesday, October 10 (second Wednesday of the month), at the Thomson School, Twelfth and L streets northwest.

Saturday, October 21 (third Saturday of the month), at the Metropolitan Baptist Church, Sixth and A streets northeast.

Saturday, October 28 (fourth Saturday of the month), at the Powell Junior High School, Lamont street and Hiatt place.

Eagle Badges to Be Awarded.

Scouts are looking forward to Saturday, October 14, the date of the autumn court of awards. At this ceremony, which will be held at 8 p. m. at the Powell Junior High School, awards of life, star and eagle ranks will be made.

The following Scouts have already filed their application and any Scouts who are eligible for the awards are requested to file their applications at once.

The eagle award will be made to Scouts Don Andrus, Walter Englehart, Forbes Barry, Bryant Tuckerman, Robert Richardson and Charles Skippon.

The eagle palm awards will be made to Scouts Houston Buchanan, Bruce E. Moore, Morris Arkin, Robert Mack, Horace Tabrinski, Kenneth McClure and William Riedel.

Life awards will be made to Scouts Albert V. Hamm, Robert D. Rands, Leroy Collins, Edward Witsell, Charles Englehart, Christopher Mullady, Bert Anspon, Harry Anspon, Karlton Pierce, Robert Wilson, Sam Wilson, Ludwig Kroutil, Carl Sachs, Robert F. McDermott, Roger Buck, Kent Dodge, Stanley Whalen, Edwin Dobyns, Bill Swanson, John Smalley, Alex Adrian, John J. Amante and James R. Hayes.

Troop 39 Under Full Steam.

William Blumenauer, scribe of Troop 39, announces that the opening meeting of Troop 39 for the 1933 season will be an outdoor meeting held tonight at Sixteenth and Kennedy streets northwest. The meeting will be opened after an assembly bugle call and will be conducted as usual, plus a special event, which will be a weenie roast.

Dr. William T. McClosky is scoutmaster of this troop, which is sponsored by the Barnard School Parent-Teacher Association.

Peck Chapel Resumes Meetings.

Troop 56, conducted by the Peck Memorial Chapel, in vacation during August, is now back in full swing. The troop has been organized into two patrols, the Flaming Arrow, with Leo Herndon as the leader, and the Pine Tree with Ernest Dinsemore as leader. The troop scribe is Joseph Campbell. The senior patrol leader is Richard Logan.

St. Albans' Troop in New Quarters.

When John H. Bayless, scoutmaster of Troop 5, was interviewed this week in regard to the progress of Troop 5, he was most enthusiastic about the prospects for the months ahead. Troop 5 has procured a meeting room of its own, decorated it in regular Scout style. The troop room has a nature corner, handicraft corner and other decorations that help to build troop spirit. Tonight's meeting will be held outdoors and will consist of a hike.

Troop 64, conducted by the Central Presbyterian Church, has launched a campaign for new members. Regular meetings are held at the church every Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Interpatrol contests have been planned, winners of which will receive medals at the end of the year.

Enthusiastic About Award.

Something entirely new and different in the way of troop achievement honors has been announced in the President Roosevelt Award. This presentation, which will be given to a large number of troops in the name of the President, will be based on the troop's year rather than on the calendar year, as has been in many of the previous awards.

Those troops which meet certain standards of efficiency, of good programing and of sound recruiting will be furnished an application blank at the time of reregistration. These will be acted upon by the national council, and it is expected that a large number of Washington troops will be among the first to receive this honor.

Troops due to reregister in August, making them among the first group which may apply for the award, are Troop 9, conducted by the Douglas M. E. Church; 16, conducted by the National Training School for Boys, and 67, conducted by the Anacostia Baptist Church.

Troops that reregister in September will be in the next group eligible for the award. These include Troops 1, conducted by St. Mathew's Roman Catholic Church; 30, conducted by the Macfarland Junior High School Parent-Teacher Association; 32, conducted by Hamline M. E. Church; 42, conducted by All Souls' Unitarian Church; 48, conducted by the Anacostia M. E. Church; 51, conducted by the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church; 52, conducted by All Saints' Episcopal Church; 57, conducted by the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, and 96, conducted by the Nativity Church.

Cub Pack Holds Fall Rally.

Cub Pack, 404, conducted by the Francis Scott Key School Parent-Teacher Association, held its opening monthly rally for the fall on Monday evening at the Potomac Heights Community Church. Walter MacPeek, educational director of the District of Columbia Council, told some stories to the Pack.

This Cub Pack has grown rapidly, largely due to the fine work that the various dens are doing each week under the leadership of their den chiefs. The Pack meeting, which is held once a month, takes the form of a rally of the various dens. The next meeting will be held late in October. C. J. Peterson is cubmaster.

Round Tables and Training Courses.

Opportunities for Scout leader growth will be provided in abundance beginning early in October. A scoutmasters' rally is scheduled for Tuesday evening, October 3, at which time details of various round table and training courses will be announced. Plans are being drawn up for courses in the elements of scoutmastership and the principles of scoutmastership. The District of Columbia Chapter of the American Red Cross plans to offer a course in the principle of first aid, in which a large number of scoutmasters will enroll.

A series of specialization courses are planned in pioneering, play ways of scouting advancement, training patrol leaders and other junior leaders, patrol camp cookery and sea scouting.

Disabled Veterans' Head To Speak Here Monday

Plans of the Disabled American Veterans to fight for repeal of the economy bill will be outlined by Joseph W. McQueen, national commander, at a meeting of the local organization Monday.

James E. Van Zandt, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Rice Means, department commander of the American Legion, and Capt. Thomas Kirby, legislative chairman of the D. A. V., also will speak.

Culbertson on Bridge

The Last Mistake.

Quite often the player who makes the last mistake suffers not only for his own sins but for those of others as well. Frequently bridge players, carried away by exaggerated ideas of their holdings and hoping to find in their partners' hands everything that fancy could paint, bid their hands beyond any possible chance of fulfilment with correct play and anything like a reasonably sane distribution. When this occurs it is not at all surprising that some times an opponent will double in exasperation as a sort of protest against what he regards as flying in the face of facts, and when the doubled contract is made, the doubler is critized, whereas the overbidders are not.

Take as an example the following hand, which was played in Crockford's Club (not necessarily by experts) in a recent rubber game:

South, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	4♣(1)	Pass(2)
4NT(3)	Pass	5♣(4)	Pass
6♣(5)	Pass	Pass	Dbl.(6)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Entirely too strong a response. North's hand suggests strongly the wisdom of play at notrump. Hence the proper response is either two notrump or three clubs.
2—With the hope that his opponents may go too far.
4—North now becomes conservative. He realizes that there is probably one Ace missing.
5—Again an overbid. There are entirely too many holes in the hand. However, South has a right to anticipate a considerably stronger hinding by North.
6—With 2½ plus honor-tricks and a remote chance of a trump trick, East's Double is understandable, but still bad. The penalty which North and South would suffer does not promise to be of great proportions. Why decrease the chances of tipping the Declarer off to the location of the key cards?

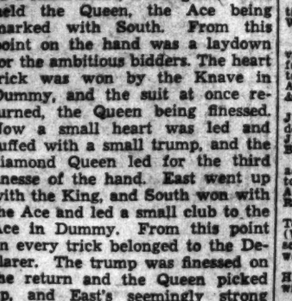
West chose as his Opening lead his fourth-best spade, and East, when a low spade was played from Dummy, made the correct guess, finessing the Knave. East was at once in a quandary as to his proper continuation. A club was impossible as it would surrender all chance of a trick in trumps, and no other suit seemed to offer a good alternative lead. However, he decided that the best hope now of defeating the contract was the lead of a small heart, trusting that West held the Queen, the Ace being marked with South. From this point on the hand was a laydown for the ambitious bidders. The heart trick was won by the Knave in Dummy, and the suit at once returned, the Queen being finessed. Now a small heart was led and ruffed with a small trump, and the diamond Queen led for the third finesse of the hand. East went up with the King, and South won with the Ace and led a small club to the Ace in Dummy. From this point on every trick belonged to the Declarer. The trump was finessed on the return and the Queen picked up, and East's seemingly strong hand made worthless.

It is, of course, by no means certain that South's foolhardy contract could have been defeated; in fact, as the cards lie, it is extremely improbable. But there is no doubt that East's Double was a contributing factor in the discomfiture of himself and his partner.

Tomorrow's Hand.

By what steps in the bidding should North and South reach a Slam on the hands below?

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Murder Victim Found in Wood Of Northeast

Awaiting a "break" in their investigation of a four-day-old gangland killing, police of the homicide squad last night launched a hunt for the murderer of a man whose body was found yesterday in a wooded Northeast section, riddled through the chest by a bullet.

The victim, Salvatore Fusco, 52, former railroad employe, was discovered in Patterson's woods, near Fifth street and Florida avenue northeast, by a passerby.

It was believed at first the woods slaying was connected with last Monday's gangland murder of Charles W. Jones, 32, alleged liquor runner. Fusco's relatives denied, however, he had anything to do with illicit liquor traffic.

His brother, Frank, who operates a delicatessen at 1915 Benning road northwest, could assign no motive for the killing. He said his brother had no known enemies.

A .45 caliber revolver, found in a downtown speakeasy, is regarded as a possible clew in the Jones slaying. It will be examined by Lieut. John H. Fowler, ballistic expert.

Wife Finds Mate Dead By Own Hand in Garage

William Suit, 39, a paperhanger, who had been in bad health, was found dead last night in a garage at the rear of his home, 318 Eighth street northeast. He had fired a shotgun into his chest. His wife, Margaret, found the body.

Police Hunt for Kin Of Homeless Youth

A letter from a local woman says Ben's picture resembles the victim of a kidnaping in Norristown several years ago. He was unable to give police any information about his home or relatives.

3 D. C. Relief Employes Quit In Cut Protest

Welfare Board Director Will Report to Hopkins on Probe Monday.

Three District Emergency Relief Organization employes have resigned in protest of the disputed salary "raise" which cut their pay and brought an investigation of District relief affairs by Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator.

The trio are among the 27 who took salary cuts while 97 others were raised. The increase added $14,822 to the larger group and took $5,767 from the others. Leroy A. Halbert, District relief administrator, took an increase of $600 per year, making his salary $5,000.

George S. Wilson, director of the Board of Public Welfare, has been designated by Hopkins to investigate the affair. Hopkins said yesterday the changes should have been submitted to his office for approval, because the increased pay was due to Federal Relief grants.

The three who resigned are C. P. Dienelt, a pay roll clerk, who was cut from $1,300 to $1,014; C. P. Dewey, a disbursing clerk, cut from $1,560 to $1,500, and J. Clonts, an assignment clerk, cut from $1,040 to $911.60.

When Hopkins returns here Monday he will receive Mr. Wilson's report. The matter also will be taken up with Alan Johnstone, field representative of the Relief Administration, when he returns next week.

Woman Asks Right To Inspect Account

Tells Court Conservator Denied Her Permission.

Chief Justice A. A. Wheat, in District Supreme Court, yesterday ordered George F. Hoover, conservator of the Northeast Savings Bank, and J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency, to show cause October 2 why they should not permit Mary Rasmussen, 1421 Orren street northeast, to inspect her account to determine the amount of her deposit.

The court was informed that efforts by the depositor to find out her balance have failed. She also filed an affidavit of prejudice against Justice F. D. Letts, against whom Jesse C. Duke, her attorney, last year filed impeachment proceedings in the House of Representatives.

Fishing Season Extended to Aid Food Seekers.

The fishing season has been extended to November 15 to help fishermen forced by economic conditions to seek much of their family food supply in the Tidal Basin, officials of the National Capital Parks announced yesterday.

The season formerly ran from May 30 to October 1. Under the new regulation it will start June 15 to protect spawning bass.

The changes were made on the plea of Commissioner of Fisheries Frank T. Bell. He cited the plight of unemployed heads of families.

Police Greet Trio on Beer Permit Visit

Alleged Gangsters Seized at Shoreham Hotel, Grilled, Freed.

The "strange interlude" that took three alleged gangsters from an exclusive hotel to a not-so-exclusive police station was over last night—with a brewery permit still to be sought.

The ways of Washington must have been puzzling to Issy Bernstein, New York; Henry Scharr, Detroit, and Irving Sherman, Fort Lee, N. J.

Bernstein and Scharr, police said, were members of the former Detroit "Purple Gang." With Sherman, they claimed to have come to Washington about their rejected application for a brewery permit.

Interlude Begins.

The interlude started when the trio appeared at the Shoreham Hotel desk to ask for their room keys. "Dope racket" appears on the police records of Bernstein and Scharr, and narcotic agents had been warned of their visit here. The three were arrested.

Protesting, they were taken to a police station. With a gang murder to be solved, with narcotic men scenting a scoop, the police had plenty of questions they wished answered.

They had come to Washington, they asserted, on legitimate business. Hadn't Scharr and Bernstein purchased a brewery at Saginaw, Mich., and weren't they ready to turn out beer? And hadn't they applied for a brewery permit and been refused by the Federal Government because of their former—er—activities?

"Didn't Know Ropes."

Scharr and Bernstein protested they didn't know the ropes in Washington. They had picked up Sherman, New Jersey roadhouse proprietor, on the way down, thinking he might know somebody who could help things along.

That was their story, and they stuck to it. Shortly before midnight police were convinced the story was correct. They released them.

Somewhat the worse for wear, the three returned to their hotel to think matters over. If, they pondered, that was the treatment given men who merely appeared in town about a beer permit, what would happen to them when they actually asked the commissioner of industrial alcohol for one?

Building Sale Here Attacked

Farragut Medical Auction Illegal Through Waiver, Suit Declares.

The recent auction sale of the Farragut Medical Building, Seventeenth and I streets northwest, was attacked in District Supreme Court yesterday by F. H. Duehay, Inc., former owner.

The court was informed that the New York Life Insurance Co. loaned $400,000 on the building in 1928. This was reduced to $11,000 in 1932, and when the note fell due, the insurance company allegedly waived its right to foreclose, and turned the building over to the B. F. Saul Co. to operate.

Later, the suit complained, the waiver was revoked and the building was sold for $400,000 to Spencer Gordon, who represented the insurance company.

The suit claims that having granted a waiver, the company could not thereafter foreclose.

Writ Sought in Fight to Prove Vaccinations Successful.

A legal battle on behalf of two children of H. H. Entz, who were prevented from entering Gage School yesterday, will be waged by Daniel S. Ring and Walter M. Bastian, Washington lawyers.

Ring said he will file a writ of mandamus this morning to require school authorities to show cause why the children should not be admitted. A similar writ was dismissed by Justice Jesse C. Adkins when it was found iodine had been applied to fresh vaccinations before the vaccine took effect.

Entz said he had them revaccinated. Health inspectors declared they found the children's arms so tightly bound with gauze and adhesive tape that they refused to remove the covering for inspection. Entz said he can produce a physician and two nurses to prove the vaccinations were successful.

The children were admitted Monday for three days, but were not recognized as students. Janitors were stationed at the doors yesterday to bar them.

Michigan Tag Only Clew; Representative Asked to Seek Owner.

Mrs. William R. Northen, 512 Second street southeast, knew the dog was lost the moment she saw him. She had seen lost dogs before but she never saw one apparently so far from home.

His license tag had been issued in 1932 in Washtenaw County, Mich. Mrs. Northen called the Capitol and asked the operator to connect her with a representative from Michigan.

She talked with offices of several Michigan representatives. Finally she got the office of Representative J. S. Lehr, whose district includes Washtenaw County. She told about finding the dog from his district. Last night the following message was dispatched:

"Washtenew County clerk,
"Ann Arbor, Mich.
"Wire fox terrier, license tag 5584—1932 Washtenaw County. If owner interested please communicate with J. C. Lehr, M. C."

Traction Heads Likely to Stay After Merger

Hanna and Ham Probably Will Be Renamed in Few Days.

Names of officials to head the Capital Transit Co.—the new firm into which the city's two trolley systems will be merged—will be announced within a few days, it was learned last night.

It is expected that John H. Hanna, now president of the Capital Traction Co., will be president of the consolidated corporation. William F. Ham, it is thought, will continue as president of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. to go on as a holding company.

Hanna last night said that all possible speed was being made in effecting the merger and any delays would be due to necessary legal steps of organization.

Following the effecting of the combine, a detailed program of track changes to allow more economical operation through the elimination of curves and duplication of service will be begun, Mr. Hanna said.

Yesterday the Public Utilities Commission, through letters to Mr. Hanna and Mr. Ham, indicated that it would approve the merger plan if it met with the sanction of the two companies' stockholders.

In giving its tentative approval yesterday the Public Utilities Commission ignored the protests against the terms of the merger plan which were made by William M. Clayton, chairman of the Public Utilities Committee of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Civil Service Arbitration Plan Up Today

Treasury Officials Will Discuss Conciliation Proposal.

The Civil Service Commission's plan to arbitrate complaints through departmental conciliation committees may hinge on a meeting today of Treasury Department officials to consider the proposal.

To date no departments have followed the commission's recommendations, but the commission itself has had a conciliation committee more than a week.

Treasury officials approved the commission's appeal machinery in principle. They will determine today whether to make definite recommendations to the Treasury Secretary.

The commission is waiting on the decision before asking other departments to take similar action. If the plan is successful, legislation may be asked setting up uniform machinery in all of the departments.

No complaints have come before the commission's conciliation group.

U. S. Questions Its Employes On Expenses

Survey Scheduled Next Week for Use in Adjusting Pay.

First-hand data on Washington living costs, to aid the Government in computing a possible scaling down in the Federal pay cut, will be sought in questionnaires to be sent out to Government employes early next week.

Secretary of Labor Perkins, in disclosing details of the study yesterday, said the survey will be used as a "sample" in revising the department's national living cost index machinery.

The questionnaire will be the first step in determining preliminary information about living arrangements of employees in the various salary groups, Miss Perkins explained.

Auto Cost Inquiry.

Afterward a smaller representative of employes will be asked to furnish more detailed information about their living expenses in the past year.

All queries to be included in the questionaire have not been drafted. Miss Perkins assured reporters that "women's high buttoned shoes," butt of the criticism of the old living cost index, will not be among them. Instead, she intimated, employes will be asked how much they pay for automobiles and automobile maintenance.

Employes will be asked if they have kept written record of their expenses for any part of the 1928-1933 period. The department is seeking a large number of such records for analysis.

Recent Data Needed.

"It has been recognized for some time that the cost of living index in current use is an unsatisfactory measure of change, particularly as applied to government employes, and the present study will be used in determining the new items to be included in the index and the proper weight to be given them," Miss Perkins said.

Statiticians said the new study probably will not be completed until December.

More Funds Proposed For Adjutant General

Calling attention to apparent admission by Brig. Gen. Edgar T. Conley that his charge was true that records in the adjutant general's office had never been sufficiently up to date, John Arthur Shaw, acting department commander of the Disabled American Veterans, last night expressed a hope the situation would be corrected.

He suggested the adjutant general request the Director of the Budget to release sufficient impounded funds to make partial dismantling of the adjutant general's office unnecessary.
